Hope for the Old Your Brain Glows $125,000? Too Little Gold, a Mighty Power

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S encouraging message to mayors of many cities gathered in Chicago assures them that substantial results have been achieved "along the road to economic recovery." Most important and encouraging, the President's message says that Congress will "give further attention to old age pensions."

Mayor La Guardia of New York was chosen to read the President's message.

It is good news that our government, following the example of civilized governments in other countries, will assume responsibility for poverty-stricken old age.

A "civilization" in which it is considered disgraceful to turn an old horse out to die should be ashamed to say to an old man or woman:

"We have got out of you all your useful work, now starve."

Dr. Crile, Cleveland scientific wizard, working in "pitch-black darkness of an underground laboratory," shows that brains of animals, including man, "glow by their own inner light, giving off a strange radiance that casts a mystic halo."

Dr. Crile puts it scientifically:

"The sun shines again in the protoplasm of animals."

Can it be that luminosity of the brain, highly developed, first caused halos to be painted around the heads of saints and other holy ones? Some religious "light" may have enabled pre-Raphaelite artists to see what Dr. Crile now sees by the light of science.

British taxpayers will pay the Duke of Kent $125,000 a year after he marries Princess Marina, and labor members in the House of Commons howl, long, loud and bitterly. The Prince's pay is raised from $75,000 a year, and Maxton, M. P., asks why unemployed married couples on the dole can't be paid as much.

For his information, it may be stated that if the Duke of Kent and his wife will come here and work as hard, in the line of salesmanship, as the British royal family works at home, a dozen American firms will gladly pay them $125,000 a year, and twice that.

Mighty is the power of gold. Ships from Russia bring cargoes of gold ore to Tacoma, in the State of Washington, where the ore is put through a special process.

With the refined gold, Russia builds up a cash reserve of American money for American purchases.

While expounding, and praising theories of Lenin and Karl Marx, practical Mr. Stalin does not neglect "capitalistic gold." Already, Russia produces $150,000,000 gold a year, three times as much as the total gold production of the United States. You could hardly exaggerate the influence of $150,000,000 gold a year on America's "best minds."

If Stalin raises Russian gold production, as he may do, to one thousand millions a year, and spends half of it here, those that came to jeer will stay to praise.

When Uncle Sam goes to market, buying for hungry nephews and nieces, he "goes wholesale." In New York State alone, the federal emergency relief has bought enough cabbages to fill twelve trainloads of one hundred cars each. Uncle Sam bought generously, and raised the price from $2.50 to $3.50 a ton to more than $5.

Twenty-four million pounds of cabbages will be handed free to the needy.

Ancient Hebrews said: "The blood is the life."

Modern science says sunlight is the life of the blood, which in turn distributes life throughout the body. Actinic rays create health-giving vitamins in the blood. Old age, especially, is benefited by winter sunshine.

Word comes from Florida that John D. Rockefeller, approaching 100 years of age, and spending his winter in the Florida sunlight, is enjoying health greatly improved.

Diesel-engined airplanes carrying passengers across the continent, or from North to South, profitably, at ten dollars a trip, will enable millions of children to grow stronger, and millions of old men and women to live longer, in winter sunshine.

Private owners of public monopolies and necessities are horrified, as is natural, by the

BIG BOOM IN JOBS SEEN BY RICHBERG

Conditions are ripe for the re-employment of millions of the nation's jobless, especially in the heavy goods industries, according to Donald R. Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council, who was here today to address the 10th annual conference of the New England Council at the Statler.

Declaring that he preferred to take the optimistic point of view, he added that if this re-employment does not materialize, the government will have to devise some new means of covering for the jobless—possibly by underwriting housing programs. PWA and CWA activities can not be carried on indefinitely, he said.

VOLUNTARY CHANGES

Indicating a further "settling down" of the recovery program, he said that there was an increasing tendency in Washington toward the simplification of the NRA codes. These, he also said, are to be made voluntary—rather than compulsory—affairs as soon as possible.

The New England Council today took the long view and the broad view. It became something more than a sectional organization, seeking new ways to "plug" New England's seashore and mountains and industrial produce, and listened to the foremost exponents of the New Deal to learn, if possible, the road that will bring not only New England, but the nation to the goal of recovery.

Chief amongst these salesmen of the Roosevelian ideas was Richberg, sometimes referred to as the assistant president of the United States.

'How Much Is $2500?'

Right now, what's worrying little Jean Chisolm, two, of Sharon street, Medford, is the problem of how many nice shiny pennies there are in $2500. Jean holds a Canadian Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstakes ticket on the horse, Solar Boy, and, unless he is scratched at the last minute, Jean will win at least $2500. If Solar Boy finishes well in the race, Jean's ticket may be worth as much as $38,000. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

SOVIET ARMY AID PLEDGED TO FRANCE

BULLETIN

By International News Service

London, Nov. 23—Announcement of a military entente between France and Soviet Russia created a sensation in London today.

"Russia's war promise to France," read the Evening News headline. "Russia Marches with France," said the Standard.

By International News Service

Paris, Nov. 23—Soviet Russia has offered France her huge and powerful army in the event of war with Germany, it was stated in the Chamber of Deputies today.

The statement was made by Leon Archimbaud, official budget reporter for the Ministry of War, who recently told the Chamber Germany will be able to put a fully equipped army of five and one-half million men in the field next year. He said today:

"An entente has been formed between Russia and France. It is this union alone that is stabilizing Europe and ensuring peace.

"Russia has a solid and well-equipped army which she has offered us in the event of war between Germany and France.

"Russia has Europe's finest air force, and we now have an entente with her. Our own air force is the second in Europe, thus there is no need for alarm at present."

PLOT CHARGED TO HITLER

Archimbaud stated Chancellor Hitler of Germany had always tried to set Poland and Japan against the Soviets.

He told the Chamber that Russia was the first nation to inform France that Hitler was not carrying out the stipulations of the Treaty of Versailles.

Stressing that a weak France would be an "invitation to war," Deputy Leon Faury told the Chamber:

"If you want a strong army you must make it the nation's darling."

'CASH OFFER' FOR GLORIA CHARGED

New York, Nov. 23—In bitter anguish, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt yesterday accused her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney, of plotting with a nurse to alienate the affections of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria.

Grimly defiant, she refused to accept the defeat she suffered Wednesday in the order of Supreme Court Justice Carew awarding the child to its aunt.

She called the decision "fantastic and extraordinary," and asserted she would carry her appeal to the "highest court in the United States" if necessary.

Announcement of the appeal plans followed the charge by Mrs. Vanderbilt that in September of 1933, Mrs. Whitney offered her an annual pension of $50,000 if she would relinquish all claims to her daughter.

More astonishing still was Mrs. Vanderbilt's assertion that the intermediary in this transaction was her own mother, Mrs. Gloria Kilpatrick Morgan.

Mrs. Vanderbilt conceded that

Girl Takes Poison as Official Calls

A 12-year-old Jamaica Plain girl is alleged to have swallowed poison today after discovering a truant officer at the door of her home to inquire the reason for her absence during the last two weeks from Our Lady of Lourdes School.

Marie Hanlon, residing with her aunt and guardian, Mrs. Mary Good, in Washington street, was the child.

The truant officer, unidentified, summoned police and Marie was rushed to City Hospital where it was said she would recover.

Untermeyer Denies Jewish Boycott

Southampton, Eng., Nov. 23 (INS)—"I regard this as the most important task of my career," Samuel Untermyer, noted New York attorney, said on his arrival here today for the International Non-Sectarian Boycott Conference to be held in London.

Untermyer emphatically denied charges the Jews were leading a boycott on Nazi Germany.

...d to 'Buy' Gloria, Says Mother

Mrs. Marry Payne Whitney, above, victor in the battle over custody of little Gloria Vanderbilt, tried to "buy" her over a year ago, Mrs. Vanderbilt, the girl's mother, charged today. She said Mrs. Whitney offered her $50,000 a year pension if she would relinquish all claims to the girl.

20-Degree Drop in Mercury Seen

A drop in the temperature of at least 20 degrees tomorrow afternoon and fair weather is forecast for Sunday by the meteorologist at the Federal Building.

By tomorrow night the temperature will be down to the freezing point, 32 degrees, and is likely to continue that way part of Sunday, though not so cold, according to G. Harold Noyes, meteorologist, who said the people in northern New England will find the weather somewhat colder within the next 48 hours.

CAMBRIDGE BOY TO PLAY FOR HOSE IN 1935

By JOE CASHMAN

Irving Burns, Cambridge boy who made good with the St. Louis Browns, has signed his name to a Red Sox contract.

And the same trade, which will be the second largest deal this winter, being rivalled only by the $250,000 Joe Cronin deal, will also bring Oscar Melillo, Brownie second baseman, to round out one of the strongest infields in the majors for the Red Sox.

When next season rolls around, Burns will be at first, Melillo at second, Cronin at short and Bill Warber at third.

The Red Sox yesterday announced Eddie Morgan, who had played first base last season, had been released to Rochester of the International League. This move only serves to confirm the information Burns has already been obtained.

The trade with the Browns has been in the making since the American League season closed. Tom Yawkey is determined to bring a pennant winner to Boston. His first move was to pay out what was announced as the record price in the history of baseball for Joe Cronin to the Senators, in addition to Lyn Lary.

After the Brown deal, it is said Yawkey will make determined efforts to bolster his mound staff.

"I'd be delighted to play for the Red Sox," was Burns' only comment when questioned at his home in Arlington.

CABELL, PRINCE HEAD ARMOUR

Chicago, Nov. 23—Robert H. Cabell of London, England, today was unanimously elected general manager of Armour & Co., packing firm, succeeding the late T. G. Lee.

Cabell, for the last 20 years managing director of Armour & Co., Ltd., in the British Isles, was chosen to assume the duties of president of Armour by the board of directors.

Not being a member of the board, Cabell, it was explained, was not eligible for the presidency. It was expected he would be named to the board at the next stockholders' meeting in January and then would automatically be elected president.

Frederick H. Prince, Boston capitalist and largest stockholder in the company, was elected chairman of the board of Armour companies.

NINE HERE WIN SWEEP HORSES

Fifteen Massachusetts residents, including nine in Greater Boston, have chances of sharing more than $130,000 in the Canadian Army and Navy Veterans' Sweepstakes if the horses only run right at Manchester, Eng., tomorrow.

Nine holding tickets on horses nominated to start reside in Greater Boston. French is the only lucky resident of the Merrimack Valley.

Harvard Slaps Mellon Kin 'Nazi' Scholarship

In the same manner in which the German scholarship of $1000 offered by Ernst Hanfstaengl was turned down, Harvard has rejected a similar scholarship offered by Matthew T. Mellon, nephew of former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Mellon.

Mellon, a graduate of Princeton in 1922, receiver of an A. M. degree from Harvard in 1928 and a Ph.D. from Freiburg, Germany, this year, is now a student in the Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, taking a special course in American literature and American history.

His offer of a $1500 scholarship to a Harvard student in Germany, to "replace" that offered by Dr. Hanfstaengl, was rejected. Mellon told the Boston Evening American today, after President James B.

GLORIA NOW HAS ALL SHE WANTS---EXCEPT FREEDOM

STARING EYES, 24-HOUR VIGIL FOR HER ON HUGE ESTATE

By MARGARET GARRAHAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 23—Scores of watchful eyes—police, detectives, loyal servants' eyes—guarding her every move . . . newsreel planes droning overhead . . . reporters . . . photographers . . . inquirers . . . blank silence . . .

This is the life led by Gloria Laura Vanderbilt, 10-year-old daughter of Gloria Vanderbilt and newly-named "ward of the State" under a Supreme Court decision which chops her existence into two and five-day pieces, in the trilling, exclusive hills of old Westbury, L. I., on the mammoth estate of her paternal aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Wherever she goes, a dozen eyes keep guard. They're the eyes of a Whitney chauffeur, her governess and a Pinkerton detective when she goes to school, whisked to and fro four times daily in a powerful limousine, and the eyes of a half dozen police and detectives, her teachers and the school superintendent during school hours.

GUARDED IN SLEEP

At play on the huge park-like estate, she's guarded by detectives and governess, and when she sleeps, a sleuth keeps watch in the next room.

Strangely enough, access to the estate is a simple thing when Gloria is at school. Reporters roamed the place unaccosted, driving for miles past immense, lodge-like stables, Mrs. Whitney's English-colonial sculpture studio, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's home, Mrs. G. MacCulloch Miller's house and homes of others of the Whitney clan, stopping finally at the large white stone colonial mansion where Gloria lives.

In front of the house a lone figure, a chauffeur standing beside a shiny limousine, parries newspapermen's queries with discreet replies.

"Yes, Gloria seems to be happy . . . Yes, detectives have been assigned to watch her . . . Yes, Emma Keislich is still here . . . No, Mrs. Whitney is in New York today . . . You know—you're not going to get any information around here, we've all been told to give none at all."

A footman answers the door:

"No, Mrs. Whitney isn't here. There's no one else who can speak . . . All information must come from Mrs. Whitney. You can reach her at—"

"SEEMS HAPPY"

In contrast to the silence which pervaded the estate, the grounds of the exclusive Green Vale school, which Gloria attends, swarm with detectives and police. Directly in front of the entrance three men stand watching 100 children at play.

At the drive entrance are a parked police radio car and a uniformed officer. Farther down the road, on the main highway, stand a group of newspapermen, and several hundred feet above the school a newsreel plane circles.

The three detectives watched every car that parked at the school and every person who entered. All reporters were ordered away. At the school, all inquiries were met with the response:

"We have been authorized to give no information."

POLICE CAR ESCORT

Finally the big Whitney car rolled into the drive and parked to wait for the little heiress. Fifteen minutes later it left, following a rear road to elude waiting newspapermen, and two police cars streaked toward the Whitney estate.

Gloria lives under a 24-hour guard. She has a pony and a vast estate on which to play. As playmates she has Mrs. Whitney's grandchildren. She goes to and from school in any one of 15 or 20 automobiles. On the premises are a large gymnasium and swimming pool.

She can have anything she wants—except privacy and freedom.

For four years, under Justice John F. Carew's decision, she must divide her time between aunt and mother . . . and at the age of 14 she must make a decision that means heartbreak to one or the other.

What is her reaction to the hectic limelight into which she has been thrust? Mrs. Whitney replies:

"Of course she's been upset. Any kid would be upset."

Is she happy now?

Only Gloria herself can answer that.

WHERE GLORIA MAY GO

Here, in a pose sharply in contrast with her alleged character as a "play-girl of Europe," Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt seems clearly to show the strain of the weeks she has spent in New York courts fighting vainly to retain the custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria. Mrs. Vanderbilt will continue, she says, her legal battle to prove baseless the claim that she is an "unfit" mother. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

A petition calling for a reduction in the rates of the Malden and Melrose Gas Light Company and the Malden Electric Company was filed today with the public utilities commission by Mayor Robert A. Perkins of Melrose.

FOLEY SPEAKS AT CHICAGO

Corporation Counsel Henry E. Foley, representing Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, led the discussion today of welfare relief for the coming winter, at the Conference of Mayors, in Chicago.

Foley said:

"In 1928, relief expenditures by the City of Boston, exclusive of institutional, amounted to less than $2,900,000. This year, such relief expenditures, despite work relief programs, will amount to approximately $14,300,000.

"To meet these relief expenditures, the operating budget of the City of Boston has been cut to such an extent that the budget, exclusive of relief expenditures, is now 23 per cent lower than in 1931."

she was fighting wealth, but she said:

"If needs be I will go out and work at anything I can find to get back my child, my child that always loved me, as is proven by the numerous letters she wrote me, offered in evidence."

MRS. WHITNEY SILENT

Mrs. Whitney had "nothing to say," according to a prepared statement she left with her butler at her home in Old Westbury, L. I.

That the fight by no means was ended by Justice Carew's decision making little Gloria a ward of the state in custody of Mrs. Whitney was made evident at once on Mrs. Vanderbilt's side.

Nathan Burkan, counsel to the young society widow and mother, conceded that Justice Carew adroitly had prevented him from taking the cast to an appeal court.

The fight for appeal might be expensive, he admitted, perhaps more than Mrs. Vanderbilt could afford. But he asserted he would carry the expense, if necessary.

Mrs. Vanderbilt said the same thing when she received reporters in a large first-floor room of her home at 49 E. 72nd street.

SUBMITS TO INTERVIEW

She waited patiently while the statement was read, then submitted willingly to a long interview, and only once did her composure break.

That was when she was asked about testimony that her daughter gave in the proceeding in the Supreme Court.

She cried for an instant, and her hand trembled as she reached for a glass of water before she answered:

"I am afraid my little daughter was greatly influenced—Gloria could no more mean in her heart the things she said before Justice Carew."

It was in the prepared statement that Mrs. Vanderbilt made her bitter accusations against Mrs. Whitney. In it she asserted:

"Mrs. Whitney conveniently forgets when she says 'My desire has always been to bring mother and child together' that there was no necessity for that in 1932 when I first allowed Gloria to visit her for three months.

"What means were used since then to influence my child against me, only Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Kleislich (Gloria's nurse) know.

"Actions speak louder than words.

"The very fact that Mrs. Whitney has kept Mrs. Kleislich in her employ through this proceeding, after I had dismissed her in Mrs. Whitney's own presence, and is still employing this woman, who not only tampered with, but wrote parts of the child's letter to Mrs. Morgan, as was proved by the handwriting expert, makes me doubt her sincerity.

"I do not know what Mrs. Whitney now means by saying her house was open to me at all times. I have never declined any of her invitations. These were for tea.

"If the case were not of her making why was Mr. Crocker securing witnesses to testify against me as early as June or July?

"This transpired at the trial. I did all in my power to avoid a suit, but Mrs. Whitney forced my hand when she took the child out of my house without my knowledge or consent, and I would indeed be an unnatural mother had I acquiesced to such high-handed methods.

"Mrs. Whitney is now concerned in forgetting about the case. She did not say that her own lawyer handed out 18 copies of the return to the writ to which were improperly attached affidavits which were calculated to destroy my reputation.

RULING "FANTASTIC"

"I am confident that no court in this land will sustain this fantastic and extraordinary decision.

"When the judge first made his ruling he directed that the nurse, Keislich, be discharged and that I be charged with the spiritual upbringing of my child. The judge does not explain what caused this change of heart. I will fight to the last ditch and Mr. Burkan has promised me he will stand by my side to the bitter end.

"This case may leave me penniless. Mrs. Whitney may try to have my allowance cut down to nothing, but if need be, I will go out and work at anything I can find to get back my child—my child that always loved me as is proven by the numerous letters she wrote me, offered in evidence.

"It is strange indeed that not until the trial was it ever mentioned in my presence or hearing that my child was estranged from me.

"Mrs. Whitney did not deny the statement made by the doctor, who said it was quite obvious that the child was influenced for some time back against its mother.

"I openly charge that Mrs. Whitney has been behind this whole movement conducted against me to rob me of my child."

BARRAGE OF QUESTIONS

The statement roused a barrage of question. What, she was asked, could be Mrs. Whitney's motive for wanting to take a child from a mother. She replied:

"I refuse to discuss Mrs. Whitney's motives."

She was asked whether personal animosity was involved, and retorted:

"If she had no personal animosity her actions are very strange. I believe that she has now and has had definite personal animosity."

"I am not afraid of my record. I am going to appeal definitely. I'll go to every court and the highest court in the United States.

"Mrs. Whitney's home is no fit atmosphere in which to bring up a child with hatred instilled for those she loves most. I charge that Mrs. Whitney's home is unwholesome and no place for a child."

Highlights of Blast By Mrs. Vanderbilt

Here are the highlights of the blistering statement issued by Mrs. Vanderbilt, assailing Mrs. Whitney, Justice Carew and others, reflecting the bitter anguish of a mother separated from her daughter by a court order.

"If needs be, I will go out and work at anything I can find to get back my child."

"I do not know what Mrs. Whitney now means by saying that her house was open to me at all times. I have never declined any of her invitations. These were for tea."

"I am confident no court in the land will sustain this fantastic and extraordinary decision."

"I will fight to the last ditch and Mr. Burkan (her attorney) has promised that he will stand by my side to the bitter end."

"I openly charge that Mrs. Whitney has been behind this whole movement . . . to rob me of my child."

"I charge that Mrs. Whitney's house is unwholesome and no place for a child."

"I am not afraid of my record. I'll go . . . to the highest court in the United States."

JOAN'S BABY ON MOUNTAIN TOP

By Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 23—Three-weeks-old Norman Scott Barnes today usurped the title "Hollywood's most kidnap-proof baby."

The young son of actress Joan Blondell and her cameraman husband, George Barnes, gurgled and cooed contentedly in a nursery securely anchored at the top of a 60-foot precipice utterly unaware of all the precautions taken for his safety. Steel bars protect all outside openings, even though they are more than three stories above the ground.

An intricate burglar alarm system has been installed throughout the entire wing. Watchmen stand guard round the clock.

Reynolds Predicts Pension Demand

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—A prediction that "a demand for old age pensions will sweep the next Congress" was made today by Senator Reynolds (D-N.C.).

"The movement for the federal government to take the leadership in formulating a plan for old age pensions is gaining momentum," he said in a statement.

Train Kills Head of Academy in Maine

Machiasport, Me., Nov. 23 (AP)—J. C. Merrill, principal of Washington Academy, East Machias, was killed today by a Maine Central passenger train as his automobile stalled on a crossing. The machine, struck by the locomotive, was carried 200 feet on the cowcatcher.

BABY NORMAN — JOAN BLONDELL

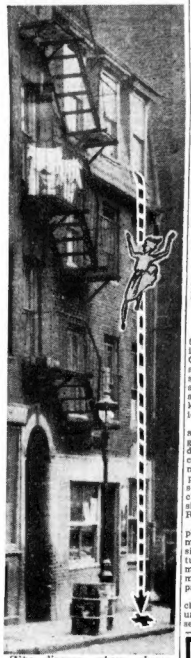

Neither bad, bold kidnapers nor even the convulsions of mother nature herself can harm this baby, three-weeks-old Norman Scott Barnes, nor his mother, Screen Star Joan Blondell. Little Norman's nursery is anchored with steel bars and cables to the bed rock of a mountainside. The Barnes home, itself, is perched like a medieval castle on the crest of a precipice. The nursery windows are barred with steel. A watchdog sleeps nights at the nursery door. Every door and window of the home is wired with burglar alarms. Daddy Barnes, ace Hollywood cameraman, intends that his wife and baby may laugh alike at earthquakes or abductors. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

WOMAN IN NORTH END DEATH PLUNGE

Mrs. Carmella Nutile, 86, fell to her death from a fourth floor window in her home at 63 Charter street, North End, early today.

Thomas M. King of Broadway, Somerville, delivering milk on the street, came upon her, still barely alive, on the sidewalk, her body crushed and broken.

He turned in a citizens' police alarm, and Sergeant James MacWeeney of Station 1 responded with a police ambulance.

She was rushed to Haymarket Relief Hospital, but was pronounced dead upon arrival.

Miss Anna D. Omiano, an elderly woman who went to the Charter street house four months ago as companion to Mrs. Nutile, was awakened by police, who told her of the tragedy. She told police:

"I saw her alive at 3 o'clock. She was walking the floor, unable to sleep. I finally fell asleep myself."

Neck and Neck Walker, Hitler Tied in "Governor" Vote

New York, Nov. 22 (INS)—Adolph Hitler and former Mayor James J. Walker ran neck-and-neck for governor in the recent New York election, a checkup on the write-in vote revealed today.

Hitler and Walker received three votes each while Lydia E. Pinkham drew two votes.

Green Blood Color It's Chlorophyll

CHEMISTS LEARN HOW STARCHES ARE MADE

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

Cleveland, O., Nov. 23—Hope that chemists will soon be able to create chlorophyll, the green color of plant leaves, which does the trick of changing the moisture and carbonic acid gas of the air into starch food, was held out here by Dr. Paul Rothemund.

If science learns how to manufacture chlorophyll, it would be easy to use it for producing limitless supplies of starches for eating and other purposes. Chlorophyll, plants' green color or green-blood color, under sunlight or ultra-violet lamp rays, would combine water and carbon dioxide to form the desired starch.

Dr. Rothemund, brought over from Germany where he was assisting Dr. Hans Fisher, Nobel prize winner who synthesized hematin or red-blood coloring matter, and world's leading authority on chlorophyll chemistry, is now working at Antioch college on endowment made by Charles F. Kettering of General Motors research department.

On about an acre of land inside of a cave, where no sunlight penetrates, Dr. Rothemund grew yellow and white corn for two weeks. From such corn, grown in utter darkness, a substance was extracted, and its chemical architecture and properties were studied. It was presumed to be the parent of chlorophyll, known as "proto-chlorophyll" or "chlorophyllogen," said Dr. Rothemund.

Loses Color

Now, another method was tried to reach the same goal, understanding the parent of chlorophyll. Chlorophyll of plants was treated so that from green, it turned into something colorless. In a solution also containing pyridine, zinc dust and acetic acid, chlorophyll was kept in nitrogen and carbon dioxide gas. Thus it lost its oxygen.

When the colorless product was again treated with oxygen, the green color came back. All these different experiments have increased the chemist's grasp of how nature builds up chlorophyll in plants, from proto-chlorophyllin, etc., so much that the solution of the chlorophyll mystery might be considered around the corner, said Dr. Rothemund.

Green coloring of plants, chlorophyll, and red blood pigment in humans, hematin, are remarkably similar in basic chemical architecture. In chlorophyll the metal magnesium, in blood pigment the metal iron play the most important parts.

Dr. Rothemund thus pointed to chlorophyll research as an aid to understanding evolution of life itself.

Wholesale Extort Plot Feared

By Universal Service

Hollywood, Nov. 23—Possibility of a wholesale extortion plot involving many of the most prominent stars and directors in Hollywood was investigated today by police.

The investigation was ordered by Chief of Detectives J. F. Taylor, as the aftermath of the arrest of Solomon Munits, 32, a recently paroled prisoner from Folsom Penitentiary.

In Munits' possession when arrested on a forgery charge was a notebook containing the names, addresses and confidential home telephone numbers of a host of prominent Hollywood figures.

The list included Norma Shearer, Ruby Keeler, Al Jolson, Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Lee Tracy, James Cagney, Mary Brian, Richard Barthelmess, James Dunn, Roscoe Karns, Mervyn Leroy, James Murray, Harpo Marx and Betty Blythe.

Munitz, who said he had been employed as a house-to-house salesman for a silk company, explained the names were only those of "prospective customers."

Munitz has served terms in Ohio, Michigan and California on forgery convictions.

ROYAL WRITER Prince Michael Is Paid $5

By Universal Service

Bucharest, Nov. 23 — Crown Prince Michael has received the first money he has ever earned.

It was a check for 500 lei ($5) sent him by a Bucharest weekly for an article the 12-year-old Prince wrote on the "beneficial results of open air sports."

Michael was so pleased with the check that he decided to become a newspaperman. He told his father, King Carol, that he wants to make regular contributions to newspapers and magazines.

Carol didn't tell his son about rejection slips.

Police Must Stand Trial in Slaying of Seven Strikers

2 Indicted

MOWED DOWN SOUTHERN WORKERS

By Associated Press

Anderson, S. C., Nov. 23—The Anderson county grand jury today returned true bills charging Charlie Smith, Honea Path policeman, and Robert Calvert, a special officer, with murder in the slaying of seven textile strikers at the Chiquola mill in Honea Path on September 6.

The jury reported it failed to find sufficient evidence to warrant true bills in the cases of George W. Page, Honea Path chief of police, and Policeman E. T. Kay, charged with murder, or in the cases of Lawrence Smith, Claude Campbell, Tom Stalcup, Floyd Smith, Rob Smith, James Smith and Lev Young, charged as accessories.

The session of criminal court will end today and trial of the two defendants will not be held this year, Solicitor Rufus Fant said.

The killings at Honea Path, bloodiest chapter in last summer's textile strike, followed the visit of a "flying squadron" to the Chiquola mill which was operating with a partial force despite the strike call.

Burst of Gunfire

Reinforced by the flying squadron of strikers from Greenwood and other points, those on strike in Honea Path gathered at the mill and its operations were suspended.

For an hour or so the two opposing forces milled about while officers sought to preserve order.

Suddenly, witnesses recounted at a coroner's inquest later, flat fights broke out and clubs began to swing in the ranks of striker and non-striker.

There was a burst of gunfire and the strikers turned and fled, leaving between 15 and 20 dead and wounded.

NEW COLOR Woman Blends

By Associated Press

Kansas City, Nov. 22—Kansas City's "Rainbow" woman continued to change color today but her condition was reported to be improving.

Since entering General hospital a week ago, the skin of the patient, Mrs. Edith Perry, 32-year-old housewife, has changed color almost daily. From blue at the outset, the skin turned purple, red, brown and red again. Early today hospital attendants said the red was becoming darker, but her temperature was back to normal.

Mrs. Perry has described the sensation of the ailment as much like that of a severe case of sunburn.

KILLED, CANNED ERA Steers Here Feed Needy

Of the 6876 long-horn steers sent to Massachusetts last summer and early fall, all but 1792 have been killed and canned, to be distributed among the needy by the ERA.

More than 258,000 cans, each containing two pounds of beef, have been given out so far, according to Arthur G. Rotch, state administrator. A total of 1,108,939 pounds were sent to the canners, he said.

HEART MAY BE STONY BUT LIFE GOES ON

MRS. REGINA BRAMY LUCILLE THIEBAULT

Here is Mrs. Regina Bramy of San Francisco, looking at an X-ray picture of her own heart, now beating strongly as ever after having been freed by surgeons of a "stone shell" of calcium. Only six persons with the strange "heart of stone" have ever been observed by science. The operation which saved Mrs. Bramy's life is as unusual as that which only recently started the "dead" heart of a woman to beating at the Maryland hospital at Baltimore. With Mrs. Bramy is her nurse, Lucille Thiebault. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

'DEAD' LIVE 'STONE' HEARTS MADE TO BEAT

Two women are alive today after amazing heart operations.

One is Mrs. Regina Bramy, 40, with a "heart of stone," who sat in a wheelchair before a group of doctors in California yesterday at the post graduate symposium on heart disease and heard two surgeons describe how they saved her life.

A wall of calcium encasing her heart in stone was chipped away by Doctors Harold Bruin and A. L. Brown, and her life saved.

Only six "stone hearts" are known to the medical world.

The other woman, whose identity has not been disclosed, was on the operating table in the University of Maryland Hospital, Baltimore. During an abdominal operation Wednesday she was reported to have died. The surgeon hastily thrust his hand through the incision and oscillated the heart rhythmically against the wall of the chest until it resumed beating.

The human heart is a wonderful mechanism; works with no batteries and no motors, and starts to pound before you are born. With its last beat your life ends—but recently surgeons have performed miracles in reviving hearts pronounced "dead." An artist has drawn the region with explanatory notes.

We didn't plan this climax to our exciting Overcoat Parade. We were forced to it! You've probably heard about the crowds we've had here, for this event. You can imagine what they did to our stocks. Overcoats at $22 were getting scarce. And staring us in the face, the biggest day of all—this next Saturday, right before Thanksgiving. Emergency measures were necessary. Heavy drafting of higher-priced overcoats simply had to be made. And was! There'll be no disappointments for men who planned to attend Bond's Overcoat Parade this week-end. On the contrary there'll be extra dividends—extra savings! Expensive Bolton Fleeces and MacGregor Meltons don't belong in anybody's stock at $22—but that's all they're going to be in this rousing climax. When they're gone, our Overcoat Parade is over. So don't wait, if you need a new overcoat and want to save money.

Wife Insists Million-Dollar Giver Is Not 'Telling All'

Munsell 'Childish,' Has Not Bared Outcome of All Mental Tests

Altruist Is Rapped as a "Delayed Adolescent"

Swans Island, Me., Nov. 23—However Alexander Ector Orr Munsell may pride himself today on having given away a million dollars, his wife, Margaret Jean Dodd Munsell, thinks his is a case of "delayed adolescence."

She said that when she was interviewed at her cottage here. She also took particular note of the story her husband told of having been examined by alienists before he separated himself from his fortune and ended in a New York "flophouse."

Munsell had declared he took the tests so that he could prove himself sane if ever anyone tried to bait his beneficences by legal methods. Mrs. Munsell said:

"Since I have first known him, and I met him while he was at Harvard and I at Wellesley, he had always had rather sensationally liberal ideas. Most men go through that stage when they're young and then outgrow it.

"GESTURE" ATTACKED

"I think this gesture of his is what psychiatrists call delayed adolescence.

"His statement about having been examined by alienists interests me. I know there is some inaccuracy in that.

"He is not telling all of it."

For all of the fact that Munsell has broken ordinary ties with her and their three sons to live his life of "benefiting mankind," Mrs. Munsell, attractive and youthful in appearance, isn't bitter. Rather resigned.

She explained one thing that few knew—that Munsell settled $500,000 on her and then started his philanthropy, not recently, but all of 15 months ago.

SON NOT SURPRISED

His actions were no surprise to their son, Alexander Munsell, 18, who is a student at the Middlesex School in Concord, as were his father and grandfather before him.

Mrs. Munsell and the boy discussed Munsell with the Middlesex School authorities many months ago.

Munsell and his mother gave the school the Alexander E. Orr Munsell Memorial Gymnasium in memory of the grandfather of the boy now a student there.

Unless he himself had told the world all about his career of charity, it would have been forever a secret as far as she was concerned, Mrs. Munsell said. She remarked:

"For some inexplicable reason, he seemed to think more of the humanity of the world outside his own family than he thought of our three boys and myself."

IDEAS DIFFERED

"I don't want to appear critical. I don't want to question the actions of my husband.

"But Alexander never seemed to share my ideas on certain phases of life. It is quite possible that my point of view is feminine and maternal, but I consider it normal."

Munsell, according to his wife, had been living the life of a "down and outer" for many months when she saw him last. She wouldn't say where the meeting took place, but it was last summer.

She was asked how he was dressed. She had to be pressed. Was he shabby? She answered with a catch in her voice:

"Yes, unfortunately, he was."

But she went on to say that she was living for her three children now. They are Alexander, Jr., who goes to Middlesex School in Concord, Mass.; David and Stephen, who are at a ranch school in Tucson, Ariz. Alexander is 16, David 14 and Stephen 11.

What about her husband? Did she think he would ever change his mind? And what would she do—take him back?

She looked off in the distance, perhaps wondering herself. Then she said:

"He may change his mind. It's possible, but not probable."

Then she paused again. She answered the question about taking him back:

"Well, I would never let him starve. But whatever comes, I certainly would give him no great amount of money."

Although Munsell's undertaking necessarily separates him from his family, his wife said she had no idea of divorcing him. He had not made any attempts to interfere with the children or their education, she asserted. In fact, she said:

"He has manifested no special interest in their welfare. I have had them here with me for many summers. Mr. Munsell has never felt the affection for the place which I share with my boys."

The question of divorcing her husband struck a chord in her memory. When Charles Garland, the 1922 prototype of Munsell, gave away his million to humanity, his wife finally divorced him after he had been in several "love-farm" episodes. Mrs. Munsell recalled:

"I met Charles Garland's wife when we were both patients at Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, following the birth of our first children.

"I can understand now how she felt when her husband renounced his family obligations to become a benefactor to humanity."

Mrs. Munsell has been living at this island since 1905. It's only 30 miles from Rockland; she has a Colonial cottage with two servants. It's "peaceful and serene" there, she said.

Hits 'Childish' Gifts

Mrs. Margaret Jean Munsell, at her rural Maine retreat, described the million dollar gifts of her husband, Alexander Ector Orr Munsell, as "delayed adolescence." She said she believes he has not told all details of his test by alienists. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

one whose horse even steps up to the start is assured of $2500.

Few sweepstake announcements have been attended with as much confusion as to who holds the lucky tickets as this one. In three cases, two in Greater Boston, persons at the addresses given said they didn't have the tickets. At Fitchburg another man said the same.

ADMITS LUCK

Michael Timmons of 98 Wheatland street, Somerville, who drew the favorite, "Jean's Dream" under the ticket pseudonym "Little Four," at first denied he was the ticket holder but later admitted it.

He is an employe of the Croft Brewing Company of Roxbury and his family lives at Portsmouth, N. H. Today at the brewery he was congratulated by Walter Croft, Sr., noted brewmaster and head of the firm.

Little Jean Chisholm, two and a half of 137 Sharon street, Medford, had no dreams about "Jean's Dream", the horse, or any other horse, but her ticket drew the gallopер "Solar Boy," another favorite. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chisholm, the father being a salesman. Jean had a ticket on the last Irish sweepstakes but won nothing.

R. Spatolo of 53 Beacham street, Winthrop, also drew "Solar Boy."

NOT A CROW

Another ticket entitled "Three Black Crows," and giving the address: 30 Bennett street, Brighton, was charged up with Jesmond's Dream, another starter.

But Dr. Henry S. Rowen, former City Hospital trustee, lives there. He didn't have any such pseudonym as "Three Black Crows," he said, and he didn't have any idea of anyone in the household who did.

It was about the same with another starter's ticket made out to Harry Miller, Fitchburg.

Others drawing horses included: William Powers, of 33 Granite street, Taunton, who drew "Jesmonds Dream"; Zella Chabot, of New Bedford, "Hands Off"; William G. Williams, of Ludlow, Vt., "Hiker"; W. J. Dawn, of Jefferson, drew "Misanthorpe"; A. E. French, of 278 Haverhill street, Lawrence, drew "Negro"; W. Hanham, of 217 Warren street, Allston, "St. Boswell."

Each of the above stand to win $30,000, $20,000, $10,000, $5000, or starters prize.

The following drew non-starters: Elisabeth Pfeiffer, of Dorchester, "Good Luck"; "Stonehaven" also drew "Rabbit's Paw," although, from Dorchester, and J. Murphy, of Charlestown, and Diani Salen, East Boston, likewise drew horses. There are 75 Consolation prizes to New England residents.

RICHBERG PREDICTS JOBS FOR MILLIONS

earners are once more absorbed by industry, Richberg made a plea for the planned economy, which he believes will make this absorption possible.

Speaking of the many steps that have been taken toward recovery, he said:

"In these concerted activities, we put in motion economic forces of dangerous capacity for evil as well as good. We develop trade wars, sectional conflicts, international hostilities.

"These are financed by the masses of people and they affect the lives of millions. The need for planning and direction arises, but it presents two alternatives.

"One is to plan the whole economy of a nation, to think of individuals as serving the state, to organize a social advance and to provide for the individual a sharing of the social gains.

"The other is to plan primarily to maintain an economic balance, leaving the national good to flow from the individual gains, resulting from the voluntary association of individuals in private enterprises and a competitive pursuit of private interests, subject only to the minimum of public restraint, necessary for the protection of the general welfare.

"The first alternative is that chosen by many nations, which have adopted sole form of state socialism. The second alternative is the choice made by Congress in the passage of the Industrial Recovery Act and other emergency legislation."

OUTLINES PERIL

Richberg was frank to admit that the program of shorter hours and increased wages might drive us back onto the road to ruin unless safeguards were provided against sudden and sweeping increases in labor costs.

And he outlined another peril:

"How can we promote the mass production of goods and services with high wages and low prices without fostering monopolies and eliminating small enterprises? If we set ourselves to preserve trade and industrial enterprises merely because they are small, and to destroy others merely because they are large, our anti-monopoly program may run squarely in opposition to our labor-consumer program.

"If, on the other hand, we write our rules of fair competition for the sole purpose of protecting the efficient enterprises, regardless of its size, then we must expect to see the gradual elimination of many enterprises too big or too small to survive in a fair field.

"There are a great many corporations so loaded down with capital obligations and so enmeshed in red tape and bureaucratic methods they cannot compete successfully with smaller, aggressive rivals, except with the aid of special privileges and unfair practices.

"There are thousands of 'little fellows' so inefficient by virtue of size alone that they only exist through under-paying labor and over-charging consumers. The air will be filled by political clamor against any planned economy that tends to eliminate either the overgrown or the under-sized.

"BITTER ROAD"

"If we are to plan a better way, we must early make our choice, either in behalf of the consumer to favor efficiency regardless of size, or in behalf of the small producer, to favor littleness regardless of efficiency. That is the plain choice and whichever way we chose, it is going to be a bitter road for a great many people to travel."

And, by way of conclusion, the speaker said:

"Finally, let me pose the fundamental issue in the recovery program: Are we to develop a planned economy that is neither Fascist nor Communist in character, which is determined by no dictatorship or autocracy, and which aims—not to regiment a citizenship in service to the state—but to organize afree people better for service to themselves."

SMITH IS HEARD

The problem of labor organization touched on by Richberg, was discussed in greater detail by Edwin S. Smith, member of the National Labor Relations Board and Massachusetts' own commissioner of labor and industry who said that "the progressive organization of labor seems an inevitable concomitant of our industrial system."

Section (a) of Tbs of the NIRA, in furthering that process, merely gives legislative sanction, he said, to a tendency that might accomplish itself less peaceably were this sanction withdrawn.

"Seven (a) cannot at all be regarded as a step to labor thrown out by a Congress, more or less jittery about revolution," he said. "It was a definitely calculated part, and an exceedingly important part, of the total recovery program. The low individual earnings of industrial workers, plus the great gap in purchasing power denoted by the millions of unemployed, were economic drags that had to be removed."

Smith said that, in a sense, all industry had made a collective bargain with labor, one of the terms of which was that labor should get "7 (a)" in return for industry's right to combine to its own advantage. Some sections of industry, he added, have sought to avoid the implications of that bargain.

U. S. REMINDS 12 NATIONS OF BIG DEBTS

Washington, Nov. 23—Politely, briefly—and hopelessly—the State Department reminded 12 nations that on December 15 they would owe the United States $630,122,354.

Officials knew that only Finland, the single nation which had not defaulted on its past obligations, would pay the next instalment. That was a mere $228,538.

The notes simply said that payments on the war debt would be due in mid-December. They were sent to:

Great Britain, who owes $379,461,776; France, $163,616,843; Italy, $30,570,196; Poland, $22,972,909; Belgium, $21,628,360; Czechoslovakia, $6,118,514; Latvia, $642,025; Lithuania, $490,501; Estonia, $1,884,185; Hungary, $202,249; Rumania, $2,346,250.

Of that total, $154,729,976 in principal and interest payments falls due on December 15, including the following: Great Britain, $117,760,765; Italy, $2,141,593; Czechoslovakia, $1,662,812; Belgium, $3,109,453; Estonia, $531,350; Finland, $228,538; France, $22,308,312; Hungary, $50,216; Latvia, $220,683; Lithuania, $121,466; Poland, $6,616,039, and Rumania, $48,750.

Ruling Reversed

Miss Theresa M. Manning, sister of the Lynn mayor who is out of town, found her situation as censor of a dancing act at a theater in Lynn a bit of a puzzle today when William K. Wallace, the official censor, reversed her ruling.

BANNED DANCE ACT GOES ON

The stage censorship in Lynn took a lively upturn today when Patrolman William K. Wallace, official city censor, approved the dance act of Jose Renaldo and Her Modernistic Dancing Girls — and Miss Theresa M. Manning, sister and secretary of the mayor, found herself whistling into the wind.

Miss Manning had banned part of the act at a local theater because, she said, there were "objectionable features."

But today the dancing number was restored through permission of the official censor and there was speculation as to what position would be taken by Mayor J. Fred Manning when he returns from a mayors' meeting in Chicago.

Another squabble grows out of the censorship matter also—that over the question as to who is the acting mayor when the mayor is away.

The censoring by Miss Manning brought the assertion that although President Timothy A. Curtin of the city council is the official acting mayor, his sister has been usurping this function.

KANE'S PRESENTS "NICK PARKYAKAKAS" 10:30 P. M. FRIDAY --- WNAC

THRONG CHEERS CELT PAGEANT OPENING

Governor-elect James M. Curley officially opened the "Pageant of the Celt" at Boston Garden with a tribute to the Hearst papers, and a plea to wage earners to contribute some portion of their earnings to the poor.

The pageant is being given for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. It depicts the major events in the development of Ireland from the times of antiquity to the Easter rebellion in 1916. The governor-elect said:

"The Hearst papers in their work for the poor, practice the Second Divine Commandment, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor.'

"While we are not quite so wealthy as we might be, every individual now employed should give a little to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund in order to provide a Christmas dinner for the poor.

"We should all have the true neighborly spirit this year. If two out of every three persons now employed would give a little to the fund, they would provide sufficient money to bring joy in the hearts of those who have been wandering in the valley of tears for the past five years.

"Make it a point to bring Christmas cheer into the heart of some family in addition to your own this year.

"Support the splendid work now being done by this splendid newspaper, the Boston Evening American."

Miss Mary Curley accompanied the governor-elect. They arrived with a large party of friends, who remained for the entire affair.

A throng watched the pageant, applauding generously local talent and professional actors alike.

The pageant is in 9 scenes, opening with the arrival of the Milesians in Ireland, for the first recorded Irish invasion.

The final scene showed cross sections of the Easter Uprising in 1916.

Before the pageant started, Miss Sheila O'Donovan Rossa sang, in Gaelic, "Roisen Dubh" Ireland's oldest known song.

The pageant was closed by a rendition of the Soldier Song, the marching song of the citizen-soldiers in the Easter warfare, sung by Thomas Quinn, of Boston.

Throughout the pageant various choruses and choirs maintained a background of music, assisted by orchestras, an organ, and two companies of Irish pipers.

The second showing will be held tonight, and will continue through Sunday. Tickets, priced from 50c to $2.00 plus tax, are obtainable at Filene's, Jordan Marsh's, or at the Garden.

Celt Pageant Shows Irish Colleens Charming as of Old

Ireland produced attractive colleens in the days of old, as it does today, according to Claire Moran's delineation of Princess Eva in "The Pageant of the Celt" at Boston Garden. The pageant will aid the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

JAMES T. LYONS EVELYN KELLY

Sale to Aid Guild

Many useful and valuable articles have been donated for the rummage sale next Tuesday for the benefit of the Infant Savior Guild. The sale will open at 10 a. m., at Sir Walter Scott Hall, Berkeley and Appleton streets.

BLANKET SLIPS, 'ALKY' SEIZED

Plymouth, Nov. 23—Because the blanket covering the contraband slipped from the load before the eyes of a customs inspector and a coast guardsman, the driver was arrested and a truck load of alcohol valued at $7000 was seized here today.

Customs Inspector Matthew Sheehan and Coast Guardsman Henry Minot were riding through Pine Hills in Plymouth when their suspicions were aroused by a truck ahead of them.

The two officers followed. A short distance away, they saw a blanket, covering the load on the truck slip.

Sheehan overtook the car. The driver, the officers said, tried to force them from the road. He was finally brought to a stop and placed under arrest. He gave his name as George Pally, 29, of Franklin road, Milford.

Harvard-Eli Fans Watch Road Laws

A stiffening of highway police patrol this Saturday in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut on all roads leading to New Haven where Harvard will meet Yale on the gridiron was announced by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan.

He warned all persons driving to and from the game that speeding and careless driving will be stringently guarded against. Violations will be relentlessly prosecuted.

Bellingham ERA Fight Continues

Bellingham, Nov. 23—The fight between the state ERA administrator and the selectmen of this town for the right to appoint the local ERA administrator continued today as local ERA workers were forced to loaf. Edwin F. Tuttle has been named to the post by Arthur G. Rotch, state ERA head. The selectmen have chosen Herbert R. Ambler.

Japanese Set New Record in Navy, Army Budget

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tokio, Nov. 23—Japan met "the international situation" today by granting its army and navy the most money ever alloted to them.

More than one billion yen ($290,000,000) will go to the national defense in one year. This is 46 per cent of the total budget of $640,000,000 and a 9 per cent increase over the current appropriation.

A weary cabinet in session 14 hours approved the figures, ending the long and heated "battle of the budget." It was a victory for the army and navy, who had fought with propaganda for months for larger and better forces.

THREATS TO RESIGN

General Senjuro Hayashi, minister of war, threatened to resign if his demands were not met. He and Admiral Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy, told the cabinet "the international situation must be considered."

The navy contended it must be built up fully to the limits of the London treaty by the end of 1936 to be strategically placed for a building race which might follow a possible breakdown in present treaties and negotiations.

War office statements had said the army should be prepared for any eventualities on the continent and that Soviet Russia still menaced Japanese interests in the Orient.

NAVY GETS LARGE SHARE

The navy was given 530,000,000 yen and the army 490,000,000. Details of the defense allotments were not revealed. The navy had demanded 371,000,000 yen for new ships, 76,000,000 for their maintenance, 44,000,000 for modernization of warships, 24,000,000 for expansion and maintenance of the air force and 15,000,000 yen for new weapons.

Major army requests were 101,000,000 yen for new weapons and munitions and 70,000,000 for expansion of the air force.

U. S. and Britain Insist on Washington Pact

By Associated Press

London, Nov. 23—The British and American delegations to the preliminary naval conversations agreed today to insist on continuance of the principles of the Washington naval treaty of 1922.

They decided to ask the delegation from Japan, third party to the conversations, for a further explanation of why the Asiatic Island empire thinks it should have as large a navy as either the United States or Great Britain.

The Anglo-American delegations made it clear they had no intention whatsoever of granting Japan the tonnage equality which she demanda.

$10,000 Tapestry Stolen

A rare Gorelin tapestry valued at $10,000 was stolen sometime early today from the antique shop of Louis Joseph, 380 Boylston street, Back Bay, apparently by someone with a knowledge of tapestries, as it was the finest one in the store.

BATTLE LOOMS ON FLOOR CHIEF IN SENATE

Speculation on Beacon Hill over the probable organization of the State Senate by the Republicans through the re-election of Erland F. Fish of Brookline as president, has reached the discussion stage as to floor leader.

For this post Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham and Senator Samuel Wragg of Needham are being mentioned prominently. Nicholson was under consideration four years ago, but the position was finally given to Senator Charles Stevens of Lowell. Stevens fell by the wayside in the recent state election.

Under the recount in the first Essex senatorial district, Senator Joseph B. Clancy of Lynn was defeated by the scant margin of 12 votes by Albert Cole, the Republican candidate. But Clancy has appealed to the Supreme Court for a further re-check of the vote, scheduled to be heard today.

Should this appeal be denied, a petition will undoubtedly be filed in the Senate by Clancy asking that he be seated in place of Cole, as in the last analysis, the Senate is the final judge of its membership.

In the event that Cole is seated, the deadlock of 20 Republicans and 20 Democrats would be broken, giving the G. O. P. a majority of one.

The Democrats are taking nothing for granted and Senators William Madden of Boston and Frank Hurley of Holyoke are actively working for the honor of being president. If the Republicans, however, secure the necessary majority in membership through Cole, Madden and Hurley will then fight it out for the minority floor leadership.

Harvard Slaps Mellon Kin 'Nazi' Scholarship Offer

DENIES HE IS NAZI

Mellon said he lived six years in Germany as student and teacher, but denied that he is a Nazi or "a Nazi agent." He said:

"President Conant and the Corporation seem to be under the impression that I was attempting to make them retract or recant all those noble ideals they expressed in rejecting Dr. Hanfstaengl's scholarship.

"The fact is that I was merely trying to replace this scholarship so that some deserving Harvard student could study in Germany. The real loser seems to be the student, and that's the pity of it.

"When I first wrote to Dr. Conant regarding my offer I told him that I held 'in high esteem Germany and its educational system.' I told him in the same letter that I wanted to give the money 'to the University to finance a year's study in Germany along the lines suggested by Dr. Hanfstaengl.'

"You would think that Dr. Conant, knowing all this in advance, would have thrown me out of his office. But not at all. In the friendliest manner possible he set about to jack my offer up another five hundred. He made Dr. Hanfstaengl appear a piker—a reason not given publicity along with the 'measures' and 'principles'—so there was nothing for me to do but raise the ante.

"I have never seen Dr. Hanfstaengl in my life, although since his scholarship was rejected I telegraphed my sympathy to him as a private individual and not as a Nazi leader.

"That he saw fit to publish my correspondence in Germany was something beyond my control. That I wanted to keep the matter 'in the Harvard Family' is entirely correct. Dr. Hanfstaengl belongs to that family too, you know!"

EXPLAINS REFUSAL

In explaining the Mellon scholarship rejection, Jerome D. Green, secretary to the Harvard Corporation, said, according to a copyrighted interview in the Harvard Crimson:

"The refusal of Dr. Hanfstaengl's offer was solely on the ground that the donor was 'one who has been so closely associated with the leadership of a political party which has inflicted damage on the universities of Germany through measures which have struck at principles we believe to be fundamental to universities throughout the world.'

"The issue presented by Dr. Mellon's offer was not so clear, for the reason that any offer of an adequate fellowship for study in Germany or elsewhere abroad would, under ordinary circumstances, be welcome.

"Dr. Mellon freely chose, however, to identify his intentions so explicitly with those of Dr. Hanfstaengl that the corporation felt compelled, with every desire to do justice to Dr. Mellon, to decline the offer made by him."

Business Gains Seen in Winter

Paris, Nov. 23 (INS)—Big business has assumed a new role as partner in the NRA, and as a result "the next few months will see a definite improvement in trade," said Elijah Kent Hubbard of Hartford, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association since 1918, as he sailed for home aboard the Europa today.

PLAY WRITER PINERO DIES

By Associated Press

London, Nov. 23—Sir Arthur Pinero, 79, famous playwright, died today in a nursing home following an operation.

Pinero started on his road to fame as an author by writing plays for himself—and every actor who played any part in Pinero's plays played them just as he would have, to the smallest gesture, the slightest inflection.

Born in London, May 24, 1855, Pinero started studying law in his father's office, but gave that up at the age of 19 to enter the theater, appearing first as an actor at the Theater Royal in Edinburgh.

In 1881 he turned to writing, turning out his first one-act piece, "Daisy's Escape." Thereafter he was prolific in play-writing, turning out scores of works, among which were the famed "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "The Amazons," "His House in Order" and others. The late King Edward knighted him in 1909.

Service Seen as Happiness

Service for the welfare of others is the only true happiness in life, Mrs. Ida Moulton, executive secretary of the Boston Baptist Bethel City Mission Society, told the members of the Boston University College of Practical Arts and Letters, Y. W. C. A. chapter, in an appeal for volunteers at the West End House. She said:

"Fill your lives with the things worthwhile and not merely the good times that are with us today and gone tomorrow."

Five kindergarten children sang. They were Gloria Koges, Rai Baskin, Hyman Segal, Marie Di Blasi and John Ferera.

PARENTS SHUN AHERN PROBE

The parents of Francis D. Ahern, 19-year-old Boston University student, killed under mysterious circumstances in Mexico, will not insist on a personal investigation of the matter.

They said from their Arlington home that they would leave the investigation to the government. They declared:

"No probe could give us back our boy. He is gone and that's all that matters."

'Soul and Body' to Be Sermon Theme

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 25.

The golden text is: "The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Hebrews 4:12).

Pat Stands Pat on This Hand

Here is pretty "Pat" Hargreaves, a student at Boston University's School of Business Administration, showing the perfect bridge hand of 13 spades, which she held in a game at Fox Hall, Mt. Vernon street. According to the mathematical odds, as figured out by Mr. Hoyle, "Pat" will have to live to be older than Methuselah before she ever holds another.

Southbridge Mill Strike Continues

Southbridge, Nov. 23—Continuance of the strike of Hamilton Woolen Company employes was voted by 550 to 4 in the local unit of the U. T. W. A. The National Textile Relations Board in Washington will be called upon by the company officials to obtain a settlement of the strike.

A guard of 53 state troopers is protecting workers who are reporting at the factory. The strikers are maintaining 400 pickets.

RUSSIA TO AID FRANCE IN WAR

service in the future, Fabry said there were not enough specialists to man fortifications, and few trained non-commissioned officers in the French army.

"In a few months, Germany has caught up with us in armaments," he said. "Some say they are ahead of us."

ARMIES OF 20,000,000

A military entente between France and Soviet Russia would give France access to almost 20,000,000 men in the event of war.

France's standing army is approximately 600,000 men and her trained reserves number 6,000,000. Russia's army is over 800,000 and her reserves are in excess of 15,000,000.

Germany has a standing army of 100,000 and reserves estimated at 1,000,000. Charges have recently been made here, however, that Germany can put more than 5,000,000 men in the field.

French Chamber Votes War Fund of $427,000,000

(Copyright, 1934, By the Associated Press)

Paris, Nov. 23—The French Chamber of Deputies today voted to spend approximately $427,000,000 for military purposes next year after it had been told that Germany was preparing for war and that Russia would back up France in the event war came.

General Louis Maurin, minister of war, declared:

"I do not say that if you wish for peace, prepare for war; I simple say we must be on our guard."

The deputies agreed to the war ministry's request passing a war budget of 5,682,000,000 francs ($374,336,200) then adding their approval of an emergency appropriation of 800,000,000 francs ($52,640,000). This latter appropriation is to be spent for new fighting equipment.

NRA HEARING ON SHOE CODE SET MONDAY

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 23—The National Recovery Board today set next Monday for consideration of the complicated shoe situation in Massachusetts.

Shoe manufacturers from rural communities have deluged the NRA today with objections to elimination of wage differentials in the boot and shoe code, as demanded by Massachusetts interests to avert wholesale migrations of shoe plants.

While the National Recovery Board studied a report of a special investigating committee on conditions in eastern Massachusetts, the committee was on its way back to the Bay State to resume its study, this time with particular attention to the city of Lowell.

Representative Rogers (R.) of Massachusetts announced yesterday was inviting shoe employers and members of the Massachusetts congressional delegation to meet in Boston soon, and a fresh complaint was received today from Representative Connery of Lynn, Mass., chairman of the House labor committee.

Connery charges that the lack of rural minima for various classifications of labor had resulted in wide differentials between skilled workers in the highly unionized centers and those in smaller communities. He said the situation threatened unemployment to thousands of workers in Massachusetts through migration of plants out of the State to localities where labor costs were lower.

NRA spokesmen pointed out today that a legal question was delaying action by the board.

DESHLER FREED ON OLD LAW

Under an old statute cited for the first time in Middlesex county, James Deshler, 43, of Smith street, Roxbury, was released from the East Cambridge jail today after having been confined there for more than a year.

His release by Judge Raoul Boudreau was based on a law which provides that a defendant is entitled to immediate release if he is held in jail for more than six months without trial.

Deshler, who was held in connection with the murder of Adolph Sommer, Cambridge inventor, since October, 1933, was also charged with two counts of armed robbery. It was on these last two indictments that he was held, since he had been found not guilty of the murder charge a short time ago.

Lady Santa to Aid Betty

Whether or not there is any truth to the rumor that Santa Claus is a myth, Betty Mark is going to have a grand old Christmas.

There may not be a Santa but there are generous and compassionate men and women who adequately fill the role.

One of these, a Quincy woman who doesn't want her name used, came forward today with a promise of a happy Christmas for Betty, the little Jamaica Plain girl who has broken her leg 13 times, and whose plight—with her mother ill in a hospital—was outlined in the Boston Evening American on Wednesday.

In a letter to the American, Quincy's Santa Claus writes today:

"Please have Mr. Mark, Betty's father, write me at my home at once and tell me about some of the things that Betty wishes for herself and her brother, Walter, also what the kiddies need in warm clothing and what size."

WALSH RANSOM DEAL BARED

By International News Service

Providence, Nov. 23—Startling revelations in the two-year-old mysterious disappearance case of Daniel L. Walsh, so-called "big time bootlegger," were made in Supreme court today by Attorney Patrick P. Curran, chairman of the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

During the hearing of a suit brought by George Press, who had been denied employment in the liquor business, Curran testified to police records showing a visit by Press, Fred Young and Carl Rettich, all close friends of Walsh, to a fashionable hotel in Boston soon after Walsh vanished from his palatial estate and stable of fast race horses in Charlestown, R. I.

"A door in the hotel opened," said statements alleged to have been made to police. "A mysterious hand came through. The sum of $40,000 ransom donated by relatives of Walsh was passed to the hand. The hand was withdrawn, but Walsh never appeared.

Press, according to Curran, told police he did not know who received the ransom money, but stated he was told by Young and Rettich that it had been placed in the mystery hand in the Boston hotel.

Walsh, the so-called Rhode Island "bootleg king," vanished January 31, 1933, after being tendered a party here and after taking a walk with Rettich.

Quits Steel Board

Washington, Nov. 23—James Mullenbach of Chicago has resigned as a member of the steel board owing to ill health.

Mother Lost in Crowds, So Boy, 2, 'Adopts' One

If he were a little older, Larry Upton, who is only two, would be in favor of mothers wearing identifying numbers, but because they don't Larry took a ride today to Revere Beach—and at that beat his mother to the police station.

Larry and his mother, Mrs. Esther Upton of 107 School street, Revere, sallied forth today on a shopping trip along Broadway, Revere.

Now the way these women get all snuffled up while shopping is very confusing, and especially so to a little lad like Larry, who as yet is hardly tall enough to peer over a rhododendron. So when the lady, Larry had been dutifully following, headed for a street car, Larry was right behind, the motorman obligingly helped him aboard, patted him on the head—and they were off.

Two miles away, the car rocked to a stop at Ocean avenue, the Beach end of the line, the women alighted, the motorman turned around—and there was Larry, still looking out a window.

"Oh-O," grunted the motorman. "Abandoned her kid, did she!" He telephoned Revere police headquarters and Patrolman Michael Driscoll met the car on the way back and took Larry to the station.

There his frantic mother found him, after a wild search through stores and alleys had proved in vain.

WIFE, SEEKING DIVORCE, TELLS OF SHOOTING

Expert marksman though he is, Leo C. Roberts of Melrose, instructor in firearms, was not up to his bullseye-hitting stride one chill night two years ago, luckily for her, Mrs. Alicia L. Roberts of Brookline testified in Middlesex Probate Court.

Mrs. Roberts, division manager of the Torrid Air Company, was opening her fight for divorce. Missing her, she told the court, the bullet made a sizably knick in an andiron, Exhibit A in the case.

Married September 3, 1927, in New York City by a justice of the peace, she testified they separated in August, 1932.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Roberts insisted that records showing a marriage ceremony took place on September 3, 1930, were for a religious ceremony by a priest, which followed the civil ceremony. She admitted a previous marriage to Arthur Wilbrook, who, she said, died some time following their separation in 1926.

From president down to the youngest bundle girl, everyone had a good time at the annual Thanksgiving party of the R. H. White Company workers, at the Chamber of Commerce building. Here is a group of the company executives, including President and Mrs. Benjamin Raphael; Simon Jacobs, general merchandise manager, and Mrs. Jacobs; Howard Lovett, store manager, and Mrs. Lovett, shown as they enjoyed the floor show produced by store talent. The White store personnel gather at frequent intervals at these great social gatherings when the executives and the hundreds of workers in the various departments forget business cares for the cause of good fellowship. R. H. WHITE CO. HOLDS FETE

The R. H. White company held its annual Thanksgiving store party at the Chamber of Commerce building, with music by Joe Nevil's Alabama Aces, and entertainment by store talent.

Sponsored by the Store Members' Association, the affair ran well into the early hours of the morning.

The display department, headed by Display Manager Carroll Nickols, staged a skit. Miss Terry Cashel tap danced, Mrs. Adele Williams and William Valade sang, and Doris Garstone, eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. Belle G. Garstone, did oriental and acrobatic dances.

Receivers Named for Rosebud Co.

Judge Hugh D. McLellan in United States court appointed Judge Daniel A. Shea of Hingham and Hugh J. Shaw of Boston, receivers for the Rosebud Dining Room Company, Inc., under bond of $5000 each. The Rosebud company was one of the ventures of Roger E. Baker, who is awaiting trial for an alleged embezzlement of $200,000 from the Boston leather concern of which he was treasurer.

Italian Clubs Unite to Hold Ball at the Somerset

By BETTY DI PESA

The topic of conversation among the members of the Italian Junior League and the Women's Italian Club of Boston is the formal dance which is to take place on Tuesday, December 4, at the Somerset.

This is the first occasion that the junior and senior clubs have organized together for one affair and it is expected to be the great social function of the season, exceeding all other events.

The committee in charge is headed by Mrs. Samuel Tomasello, who is assisted by Mrs. Joseph Tomasello, Mrs. Vincent Vollono, Mrs. Paul Chiampa and Mrs. Charles Cuneo for the senior group.

The juniors are directed by Miss Josephine Scalia. Assisting her are the Misses Evelyn Giardino, Eleanor Albiani, Alma De Stefano and Alba Antonangeli.

THANKSGIVING BALL

An important event of the autumn social season in the North End is to be the Thanksgiving Ball sponsored by the Rainbow Dramatic Club of the North Bennett Street Industrial School. The affair will be held in the school auditorium. Vincenet Zarella is chairman of the fete.

On next Monday, the Italian Junior League members will journey to the home of Miss Esther Nazzard in Roslindale to attend the annual initiation party for the new members.

The purpose of this social is to install the some fifty new girls into the club and to have them become acquainted with the present members.

An entertaining and varied program is being planned by the club's social chairman, Miss Stella Aleta, which will include three one-act skits, namely "There's One Born Every Minute," "Paying the Mortgage," and "Planning to Elope", to be presented by the talented Turiello sisters of Revere, Miss Virginia and Aurellia.

STORES REPORT SALES GAIN

New York, Nov. 23—Stores in 79 cities showed an average increase of 8.8 per cent in dollar sales for the first 13 shopping days in November, as compared with the same period last year, the National Retail Dry Goods Association reported.

This gain was 1.5 per cent higher than the increase for the first half of October. An 11 per cent gain for the whole of October against October, 1933, was reported by the Federal Reserve system.

CIVIL ENGINEER. Capt. Eric Loch says: "Camels have been my cigarette for nine years. I always have Camels—rely on them for the 'lift' they give my energy when I'm feeling 'low.'"

DEEP-SEA DIVER: "I have smoked Camels for years," says Frank Crilley. "They're milder...taste better...and they never interfere with my nervous system."

ACCOUNTANT. Harold D. Yeomans reports: "I have noticed that after sustained mental effort . . . when 'used up,' if I smoke a Camel I feel restored."

PRO FOOTBALL STAR. "Cliff" Montgomery says: "After a game, or any time when I feel like it, I light up a Camel and in a short time I feel 100% again."

● Whether their daily tasks carry them through crowded city streets, or deep impenetrable jungles, Camel smokers in all walks of life agree on the delightful "lift" they get from smoking a Camel. Mrs. William LaVarre, famous explorer, whose treks through dangerous South American jungles have taught her the vital necessity of keeping up her energy reserve, has this to say about Camels: "We took 30,000 Camels with us on our last expedition. Any time I'm tired, I just stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. And smoking Camels steadily, I find, does not affect one's nerves."

Irene Discusses Plans for Her Nearing Wedding; Doesn't Like Looks of In-Laws

SYNOPSIS

Helen Schiller, pretty manicurist in the Fifty-Fourth street branch of the swanky Anastasia Beauty Salons, so far forgot discipline one morning as to dance a few steps before the work-day began—and was seen by Walter Riley, owner of the salons. He did not speak then about this, but returned that evening to the shop, went to her—and found himself disarmed by her smile, and attracted to her.

He asked if he might take her to dance, and she assented. That led to other evenings together—evenings spent with him ever afraid that his sisters, who managed the Anastasia Salons for him, might see him. After one evening at the theater, Helen fell asleep as he drove her to her home in Bay Ridge—and he awakened her with a light kiss.

She pushed him away, but he would not be denied, and he kissed her again. "You are the first girl I have ever kissed," he told her soberly, realizing that he loved her. Events in the Riley family followed fast—with Irene becoming engaged to the socially-elect Dirk Terhune. Irene managed the luxurious and exclusive Fifty-Seventh street branch—and tried to manage her sisters as well.

CHAPTER VIII

Walter spent most of his time here. For all her nervous aggressiveness, Irene was his favorite. He admired her looks, her sophistication, and the amazing thoroughness of her mind. Their contact was always a battle but she stimulated him; he was her clearing house for complaints, advice and bitterness. Occasionally they fought bitterly.

Then her mother came out in her—her mother who had been a Polish servant girl before her marriage to Pete Riley, who had owned a dusty little hardware store on Myrtle ave., Brooklyn. They had met when Anastasia, a big-boned magnificent woman, had come in for a Welsbach mantle back in 1888.

Shortly thereafter they were married. But she proved too much for him. When Walter, the youngest of the rapidly growing brood of five, was three—Pete planted his old hat on his head one day and walked out of the musty shop into the brilliant August sunshine that shone in dusty beams through the elevated structure. Anastasia never saw him again.

Irene could haggle like a fishwife. But her veneer of acquired culture was superb. She liked to think of herself and Walter as coming from a noble strain in the family—that had in it fine old blood. Otherwise how could nature explain their beauty, their superb carriage, fine skin and swift minds?

CHEATING ON "GAS"

She greeted Walter cheerily as he came in on Wednesday morning.

"Hi! You're late. Do you know that Jersey's receipts dropped 10 per cent last week? You've got to do something, Walter. Or are you just going to wait until the business dies a natural death like a sick dog? Damn him, I'd like to wring his callow head off. I just called Stella and gave her a piece of my mind. She's in tears, the big ninny. Mama called. She's accusing Franz of cheating on gasoline. She's determined to fire him. Well, we better let her. When the old girl takes a dislike to someone, it's no let-up until he's gone. For heaven's sake, Walter, you look half shot! Where were you last night? What's the matter with you?"

"Nothing. I've a cold coming on, I guess. I'm on my way to Brooklyn now. Why don't you lay off Stella. You bawl her out and she takes it out on the girls."

"Since when are you so touchy about the girls, might I ask?"

"Well, they in turn let it off on the customers."

"Stuff and nonsense. Did you see my picture in the World?"

"I sure did. Pretty neat, I'll say."

She smiled broadly. There was a triumphant gleam in her eyes.

"Ginsberg said they wouldn't use it. A lot she knows. Say, that baby isn't as smart as she likes to think she is. If we ever booted her out I'd like to know who'd ever hand her out one hundred and fifty berries a week."

I bet some competitor would."

"They would like——. What are you going to do about Mama?"

When she talked to her brother, Irene dispensed with much of her culture.

"Let her fire the chauffeur. I can't be bothered."

"LIKE MY RING"

"Very well. Then you find her another one. I won't! You'd better talk her out of the idea. I tell you I can't spare the time hiring chauffeurs for her. The bunch of thugs I interviwed when we got Franz—I thought they'd attack me. How do you like my ring?" She held out her long, strong hand. The ring was of silver and from a low, intricately carved setting, there gleamed a delicately veined blue and white stone.

"It's an opal," Irene explained challengingly. "It's been in the family for ages and ages. It's a very precious heirloom," she added tartly when she saw his doubtful expression.

"It's lovely," he said apologetically. "Funny, I always thought an engagement wasn't legal unless it was sanctified by a diamond heirloom."

"To tell you the truth, Walt, I rather prefer a solitaire myself, but this is really a genuine heirloom."

"It's really beautiful. Congratulations, old girl."

"Don't call me old girl, even in fun. It's bad taste Aside from being tactless! Well, Walter, my good fellow, I'm in the Social Register—by marria e. Oh, the wedding's going to be in the Terhune apartment. I wanted one of the big hotels but I see Dirk's point. He doesn't like pretentiousness and we can't afford it either. Our family is nothing to show off. And of course a church wedding is out. I was very graceful about having it there.

LIKE BOWLING ALLEY

He liked that. Besides the apartment is as big as a bowling alley. My lord, they've lived in it forty years. Can you imagine living for forty years anywhere? And even though Park avenue listens swankier than Washington square, it's wiser not to have it in mama's lair. She'll behave better outside. Oh, and I've simply got to tell Ethel that Eddie is not to wear a flowing tie—the wet nosed imposter. Artist!"

she snorted. "Jerry at least looks presentable."

"How about his English accent?" Walter asked slyly. He seated himself on the edge of her desk. He watched the swift play of emotions over her mobile face. It fascinated him.

She laughed. Her teeth were superb. "Just a little too English. Oh, and Agnes—I've simply got to buy her a dress. She's taken to dressing like a debutante. If I don't sit on her darn fast she'll be stepping out in organdie—and rosebuds! At her age. I suppose that's what comes from marrying a man so much younger than oneself." She strummed nervously on her desk. "Oh, dear, and Carl!"

"What's the matter with Carl. He's all right."

"He's about as distinguished looking as a grocery clerk."

"My dear girl, you can't be responsible for your sisters' husbands."

"No, but we've got to make some sort of show at the wedding. Oh, well, you're distinguished, Walter. You have real savoir-faire. We both got it, Lord knows where. Certainly not from papa, the Irish tramp. Do you really suppose mama has some noble ancestors concealed somewhere?" Irene laughed.

"Well, you'll invent them even if she hasn't," he grinned.

She rose and with unusual demonstrativeness put her arm about her brother. "You are really stunning. How nice you feel. How nice you smell." She sniffed him. "Some day some woman will adore you. But you'll be able to make the best match of all. You've got looks, money, poise and, what's more essential, brains. There's no limit to how far you can go, my dear."

"I ADORE YOU"

"The Rileys have come a long way as it is."

"Yes," she agreed thoughtfully. "they have. But you! Say, do you know who likes you? Consuela Lacrosse. She comes in here with her long cigarette holder tilted at forty-five degrees and she's all eyes for you—all ears to hear about you. The tart! But she's got millions and position."

"So you'd marry me off to a tart, would you?" he parried.

"You know I adore you, Walt. I'll give a whole series of swank affairs as Mrs. Dirk Terhune and I'll introduce you to some of New York's prize fillies. I've great hopes for you, old fellow."

Walter rose stiffly. "Thanks," he said lightly. Then abruptly he steered the conversation into safer channels.

"How much money have the Terhunes?"

Irene sighed restlessly. "That's the rub. The family has enough, I suppose. They're those simple Americans. Real blood and all that."

"He was gassed in the war, wasn't he?"

"A trace. But enough to give him weltschmerz. He's planning to devote his life to wiping out tuberculosis."

"I think a man is wise to take on a life-work that satisfies his creative and his idealistic urges."

"WELL, I'M HAPPY"

"Rot!" she countered briskly. Her phone rang. "Hello," she purred in the affected contralto she used for telephone conversations. She disposed of the call briefly. She hung up and faced him again.

"Oh, I forgot. Parker will be in charge here while I'm gone. We've compromised on Havana although Europe's too full of painful memories yet. Walter, do you know he wanted to go to some deserted place in the mountains for a honeymoon? My lord, even on a honeymoon I'd die of ennui in a deserted place in the mountains . . . Well, I'm happy, Walter. I really am. I like Dirk. He's the real thing, and thank God, I've got enough perspicacity to recognize the real thing—brought up on sham, as it were.

"How do you explain us, the family, I mean, to Dirk, Irene?"

"I don't. Dirk is a gentleman. Remind me to thank God for gentlemen! He just takes it for granted that mama is of the Polish nobility! You know she's just impossible enough to pass as an eccentric."

In the next installment read how the Riley home is in an uproar on Irene's wedding day.

She liked to think of herself and Walter as coming from a noble strain in the family—that had in it fine old blood.

Many Fancy Turkeys on Market From the Cape and Vermont

From Martha Lee's Friday morning broadcast over Station WAAB.

It is time to talk turkey seriously, for the annual turkey-trot is on again and the turkey is sure to be the loser because of their excellence. There are many fancy turkeys on the market from the Cape and Vermont at a price range of from 30 to 40 cents.

While this is the traditional bird for the holiday feast, some people prefer duck, lamb or pork. These are all very good choices. Ducks are selling 25-28 cents a pound. Basted with orange sauce and served with a mushroom souffle (we will gladly send recipe), will make a very festive meal. In lamb, the legs and loin are 25 cents, forequarters at 12 cents. Legs of veal are 18-25 cents, and chicken and fowl of all kinds are selling at very moderate prices. For the more gamey types of birds, pheasants are, $5 a pair, and Guinea chickens are $3 a pair.

BEAR MEAT SPECIAL

Here is a note of interest from one of the markets that we visit. Between Thanksgiving and Christmas there will be a special on bear meat which in itself is very popular. The fat is excellent to rub on the scalp to keep it soft and incidentally this moistening of the scalp will help the hair to grow considerably—just an old Indian custom.

Truly, this is a real Thanksgiving in the spirit of the older days, for all the fruits and vegetables are most abundant and selling at very reasonable prices. Plenty of salad ingredients—celery at 15c a bunch, native lettuce at 8c, radishes at 5c. Chinese cabbage and leeks 10c. Either of these can be used as a salad green, or cooked vegetables. And there are string beans and butter beans and peas, all at 10c a pound. Lima beans are available at 25c, and the vegetables which we associate with this time of year—cauliflower, turnips, squash, onion—are plentiful and very inexpensive.

The apple market is still at its height, with all kinds and varieties — both the cooking and eating. Florida oranges are arriving in good condition—juicy, sweet and full of flavor, selling from 35-50c a dozen. California oranges are still high in price and not quite as plentiful as the Floridas. In the fancy fruits, we have Spanish and casaba melons, which are very juicy and tasty; large-size pineapple at 75c each, and the fancy Spanish malaga grapes and also some delicious grapes imported from Belgium.

PINK GRAPEFRUIT

You may even reverse the seasons and serve strawberry shortcake for your Thanksgiving dinner, as strawberries from Florida will be here next week. The pink grapefruit from Texas is very plentiful and reasonably priced. A very attractive fruit cup can be made using the grapefruit shell in which to serve the fruit. Remove all the membrane, scallop the edges with scissors and place either on a galax or a grape leaf.

If you are saving pennies between now and Thanksgiving, fish is a very good choice to include in the daily menus. Here again we have a wide variety of fish, at very reasonable prices. Oysters have come down 10 cents within the last week—the large are now 60c a quart and the small are 40 cents. Haddock and cod are 10 cents a pound, mackerel 15 cents and halibut is selling at 40 cents. A fish delicacy on the market this week-end is frogs' legs, at 85 cents a pound. Smelts are also here in great quantity—selling at 40 cents a pound. Fillet of sole is 25 cents and there are the smoked fishes—finnan haddie 20 cents and the fillets, 25 cents, the difference being that the fillets may be made from any white fish, the haddie from haddock.

Question: "I would like to know how to put up pickled red cabbage."
N. P., Dorchester

Answer:

PICKLED RED CABBAGE

4 quarts thinly sliced red cabbage
4 teaspoons fine salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup mustard seed
¼ cup mixed pickle spices
1 cup sugar
2 quarts vinegar, not too strong

Select large heavy cabbage, take off the outside leaves; cut in quarters and then in thin shreds, using cabbage cutter. Sprinkle the salt over cabbage, mix thoroughly and let stand over night. Drain slightly and add the pepper and mustard seed, mix and place in crock. Add sugar and pickle spices, tied in a bag, to the vinegar, bring to the boiling point slowly and pour boiling hot over the cabbage to cover. If vinegar is strong dilute with water. May be used cold, or when heated, as a vegetable, in place of sauerkraut. Will keep indefinitely.

13 STATES WIN MOVE IN PHONE RATE FIGHT

By Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 23—Thirteen states and the District of Columbia have won their first move in a fight for telephone rate revision by breaking down elaborate accounting systems which have permitted stock watering, it was disclosed here.

Formal announcement of this will be made soon by the Federal Communications Commission which last week heard utilities commissioners of these states launch a broadside against the present system, Universal Service learned.

The new regulations which will replace those of the Interstate Commerce Commission have not yet been drawn.

Two sets of rules will be prepared, one for "class A" telephone companies which are doing an annual business of more than $100,000, and another for "class B" companies whose business averages between $50,000 and $100,000.

Under the new regulations, telephone companies will be required to include in their books much information not now available to state commissions but which has an important bearing upon rate structures.

The new set-up will be such that state utility experts can quickly obtain matrial on vaulation, equipment costs, payrolls and similar items which would be considered in review of existing rates.

The state commissions which advocated the new system represented Michigan, California, District of Columbia, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Oregon, Utah, Vermont and Washington.

Pennsylvania Opens Utilities Battle

By Universal Service

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 23—In a statement of policy the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission threw down the gauntlet to utility companies, demanding that they reduce rates to bring a "real savings to the domestic consumer," or have lower rates forced upon them.

"Pennsylvania's utility bills are too high," the commission reported, pointing out the recent New York power authority report to President Roosevelt declaring that electric rates in northeastern United States were almost twice as high as necessary."

HELEN MACK AND JACK OAKIE GIVEN LEAD ROLES IN COLLEGE MYSTERY MUSICAL FILM

Jeanette MacDonald Will Go to Europe to Sing in New Opera by Franz Lehar

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 23 (U.S.)—"College Rhythm" on Sunday achieved a new high in box office records at the Paramount Theater in Los Angeles, putting Mae West into second place. Emanuel Cohen, realizing that it's these college stories with their songs and fun that appeal to Mr. and Mrs. General Public, immediately made plans to produce a college murder mystery musical, called "Terror by Night."

Beulah Marie Dix and [illegible] Milhauser have written the story and Joe Morrison, Helen Mack and Jack Oakie [illegible] for the [illegible]. W[illegible] Rogers will [illegible] and while this [illegible] is a [illegible] no doubt [illegible] be able to [illegible] a few [illegible] song [illegible] that should help any [illegible].

Louella O. Parsons

Jeanette MacDonald will go to Europe to sing in a new Franz Lehar opera. The way I got the story is that Mr. Lehar, who wrote the enchanting music for "The Merry Widow," negotiated with MGM for the loan of Miss MacDonald with the understanding that if the opera is a success it will be produced later by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with La MacDonald in the leading role.

* * *

I coaxed the story of "Casino de Paree" out of Al Jolson and if it films half as well as it sounds, it will be a wow. They have changed the title of the picture back to its original name of "Go Into Your Dance," which I think, is infinitely better. Al and Ruby Keeler co-star for the first time in this picture, and the third role will be filled by Glenda Farrell, who plays the sister. You will find that stars these days, are more [illegible] willing to share honors, just so they get a good picture.

Chatter in Hollywood

Friends close to Ann Harding and Harry Bannister say that a reconciliation is imminent. Harry flew to Hollywood when he learned that Ann [illegible] sick and he has been [illegible] constantly by her side. It's no myth about her health. She fainted on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot a few days ago when she went to have retakes made and she has been so ill that she will not make another picture until she has completely recovered—and probably not then, for she finds this motion picture acting extremely strenuous and difficult.

The choice for Wang Lung in "Good Earth" has narrowed down to two people. Either Charles Laughton or Richard Barthelmess will draw that desirable role. Personally, I'd like to see Dick get the job, although it is still a moot question whether or not an Oriental should be chosen for the lead. Aline McMahon [has] been suggested again and again for Wang Lung's wife and, if there is an all white cast, certainly no one could be better than Miss McMahon, although there may be difficulties in borrowing her from Warner Brothers.

Screen Stars in Lehar Romance

JEANNETTE MacDONALD MAURICE CHEVALIER
Jeannette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier are the romantic lovers in the famous operetta, "The Merry Widow," screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum.

New Policy at Bowdoin

A. Somerby, one of Boston's best known theatrical managers and director of the Bowdoin Square theater, has announced a new schedule of openings for the Bowdoin Square.

Al Somerby

New sound projection equipment has been installed at the Bowdoin, the most modern of any [illegible] theater, and the vaudeville bookings of six new acts each week will come from the R K O circuit. The Bowdoin will accordingly offer theatergoers one of the longest and strongest feature programs in town.

Bills will change on Saturday and Wednesday, and reduced prices will be in effect at the Bowdoin, starting tomorrow.

The screen features on tomorrow's new bill will be "The Gay Divorcee" with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in the leading roles, and Alice Brady and Edward Everett Horton in the supporting cast. The film introduces "The Continental," newest American dance craze.

'Merry Widow' at Orpheum

Franz Lehar's immortal operetta, "The Merry Widow," comes to the screen at Loew's Orpheum today, with Jeannette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier in the leading roles.

The famous musical romance has a strong supporting cast which includes Edward Everett Horton and Una Merkel, George Barbier, Minna Gombell, Sterling Holloway and Donald Meek, and among its tuneful melodies are "Girls, Girls, Girls," "Vilia" and the "Merry Widow Waltz."

Topping the new stage show are the California Revels in a revue featuring Costello and Lee, Geraldine the three Byrne Sisters and Margie Greene. Also billed are Eddie Hanely with Louise Gay in "Anything for Laughs," with Harry Tillman; Walter Walters, modern ventriloquist; the Singing Vagabond, Hal Young and the Kanasawa Troupe.

Andover ERA Row Goes to Capital

Andover, Nov. 23 — Demanding that Dr. Jeremiah J. Daly, selectman, be ousted as local ERA administrator Matthew Burns, a leading town meeting spokesman, declared that he and two other men will leave soon to confer with President Roosevelt unless conditions are remedied. A special town meeting October 1 ordered that Dr. Daly be removed.

Chu Chin Chow Lavishly Done for Screen

By ANN AMES

"Chu Chin Chow," with all the glamour of the Arabian Nights, and all the lavish eloquence and astounding skill of this modern movie age, took over the screen at the Paramount and Fenway yesterday.

Once again the screen has transcended the stage in the matter and manner of presenting a musical extravaganza, for this extraordinary film is in many ways one of the most notable achievements of the screen. No technicolor has been employed, yet "Chu Chin Chow" projects all the varied hues of its rich Oriental background, a shade bizarre and fantastic but no more so than the thrilling tale and the gorgeous pageantry of Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves.

Gaumont British have done themselves proud once more in the way of production and casting. The fascinating legend has never more vividly portrayed. The [illegible] bandit rides with his 40 thieves from his treasure cave to unbelievable deeds of villainy. The faithful and beautiful slave girl, Zahrat, suspected of disloyalty, is tortured upon the wheel. The bungling Ali Baba discovers the magic words "Open Sesame" and captures the wealth of a Midas. The two score thieves hidden in huge oil jars are delivered by camel as presents, to meet their dire fate. And the romance of the lovely Marjanah and Nur-al-din at last comes to its happy ending.

Most familiar to American audiences among the principals is Anna May Wong, who lends her exotic beauty and not inconsiderable talents to the role of the Chinese slave girl. But by far the most striking performances are given by Fritz Kortner, as menacing and malignant a murderer as may well be imagined; and by George Robey as Ali Baba, a rich role which he plays for every ounce of its grand comedy. John Garrick, who sings extremely well, and Pearl Argyle are the romantic young pair who add the love interest, and the plumpy and giggling wife of the merchant prince is played with gusto by Thelma Tuson.

'Continental'

Ginger Rogers, above, who co-stars with Fred Astaire in the musical comedy, "The Gay Divorcee," on the screen at the Uptown starting tomorrow.

Isobel French in Recital

Isabel French, lyric soprano, will give a song recital in Jordan Hall on next Tuesday evening, November 27. This is Mrs. French's first appearance here in two years, and she has chosen a distinctive program for her return to Boston concert stages where she has been a favorite for the past several seasons.

Songs from Gluck, Lully, Mozart, Franz, Paladilhe, Bruneau, Debussy, Faure, Schubert, Wolf, Pizzetti, Respighi and Carpenter are included on the artist's program.

Mrs. French is a native of Washington.

On Tremont Screen

The current screen attraction at the Tremont theater is "Catherine the Great," with the famous English screen and stage star, Elizabeth Bergner and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the leading roles. On the same bill is the musical comedy romance "Sunnyside Up," in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell have the star parts. The latest Walt Disney Silly Symphony, and newsreel features will make up the balance of the program.

Constance Cummings and Russ Columbo in Walter Winchell's "Broadway Thru A Keyhole," will be featured on the new program starting Sunday. On the same program will be "Washington Merry-Go-Round," with Lee Tracy as the star.

Eddie Cantor Scores in One of His Most Hilarious Roles in "Kid Millions"

By JOYCE DANA

Eddie Cantor falls heir to seventy-seven million dollars and one of his most hilarious roles in "Kid Millions," the new screen feature at Loew's State Theater.

This time the wide-eyed and not too wide awake Eddie starts his career in the lowly surroundings of the Brooklyn waterfront where he is forever ducking the punches of a gang of tough-looking step-brothers, and entertaining the countless kids in the neighborhood with songs for which they provide an impromptu orchestra.

When the big news comes that he's the long missing son of an archeologist who has left a fabulous fortune hidden away in darkest Egypt, the plot and a party, including an assortment of engaging crooks with an eye on Eddie's millions, embark on another of those Hollywood luxury liners for Cario.

There's a Kentucky Colonel, whose claim to the fortune is based on the fact that his organization financed the late Professor Wilson's expedition. There is Ethel Merman, induced to pose as the same Wilson's widow, and her companion in villainy played by the comical and intense Walter Hymer. And once they're all in Egypt there are our old friends Block and Sully, to add still further to the hilarious nonsense that keeps "Kid Millions" another of those laugh riots.
expedition. There is Ethel Merman, induced to pose as the same Wilson's widow, and her companion in villainy played by the comical and intense Walter Hymer. And once they're all in Egypt there are our old friends Block and Sully, to add still further to the hilarious nonsense that keeps "Kid Millions" another of those laugh riots

Eve (Look-at-him!) Scully is the amorously inclined and amazingly stupid Sheik's daughter, and although her royal parent has sworn that the Wilson fortune by the shades of his ancestors will never leave the country, and that those who seek it shall be murdered in the best Oriental fashion, it is Eve who saves the day for Eddie, who eventually escapes in an airplane which he doesn't know how to fly and miraculously lands in New York.

The Egyptian background permits new and very funny capers by Mr. Cantor and his associates. Their adventures in the subterranean chambers of horrors and mummies are nothing short of a riot, and Eddie's delight at the mystifying magic of the fakirs in the market place brings further new and delightful nonsense.

Ann Sothern and George Murphy bring a note of romantic relief to the absurdities, singing pleasingly, and playing straight to a cast that is otherwise completely comic. Ethel Merman puts a song over almost as cleverly as the star himself, and has plenty of opportunity to show that she knows her way along the route of the laugh parade with the rest of them

Jesse Block as usual is a foil for that most delightful of dumb Doras, Eve Scully, who laughs at nothing, but gives everybody else plenty to get hysterical about.

The final sequences of the picture, when the altruistic Eddie has founded a free ice cream factory for kids, are done in the new technicolor with strawberry ice cream as natural as life and a hundred times bigger. Chocolate, vanilla and strawberry sodas, as tall as the ceiling and filled with strangely inexhaustible contents, are a delight to behold, and a source of joy to hundreds of youngsters who imbibe so freely that they grow to three times their size right in front of your very eyes.

It's the same Eddie, with another extravagant plot chock full of mad and merry ideas that might have been perfected by Rube Goldberg himself. Barring the elaborate color scenes it's not as lavishly and luxuriously dressed up as some of its Cantor predecessors, but there are more and prettier girls and melodies, and a book that can stand much more firmly on its own merits.

Walter Donaldson and Gus Kahn wrote the musical score, which has a half a dozen hits, of which "O. K. Toot" thus far seems to be the winner.

CARNEY IN NEW FINANCE POST

Joseph P. Carney, who resigned as collector of internal revenue and ERA administrator in Massachusetts, has taken up his new duties as New England manager of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Having passed through the stages of banker, lawyer and business man, Carney is believed by many to be unusually well equipped for his task of extending industrial loans.

Stressing the necessity for good security before a loan is placed Carney said that the corporation was not to supplant banks.

RELIEF UNITES CURLEY, MAYOR

Forgetting past differences Mayor Mansfield and Governor-elect Curley will discuss Massachusetts relief and housing problems at a luncheon conference called by the governor-elect tomorrow at the Parker House. The mayors of 10 other Bay State cities have agreed to attend.

Governor-elect Curley conferred briefly with FERA administrator Harry L. Hopkins yesterday before the administrator left for Chicago.

At the conference tomorrow plans for using federal funds in housing developments throughout the Commonwealth will be discussed

WOMAN FREED IN TRUNK DEATHS

By Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 23—A charge of homicide placed against Miss Ruby Clarke, 36, of Nyack, N. Y., after the bodies of three infants were found in a trunk which belonged to her, was dismissed in the Brooklyn homicide court today.

Miss Clarke, attractive former school teacher, had been held without bail on a short affidavit since Tuesday night, when she returned voluntarily from a hunting trip after police informed her of the discovery of the bodies.

Miss Clarke had stored the trunk in which the bodies were found in a Brooklyn warehouse in the summer of 1932

A detective informed Magistrate David Hirshfield that he had found no evidence linking Miss Clarke with the deaths of the babies. Magistrate Hirshfield said:

"It is unfortunate that we have such a system whereby a person can be put in jail two days without bail on a short affidavit made by a detective. I believe you have been punished. You are discharged."

Miss Clarke, who has been near collapse since she arrived here, was assisted by her attorney from the courtroom

Joseph Lavita, 67, was found dead today in his home in Stillman street, North End. Police, who broke down a door after Dinko Russo, a cousin, tried to gain entrance, attributed death to natural causes.

About Faces by Art Moger

Rah! Rah! Rah!

Give a lusty yell and cheer for today's "About Faces" stars as they are portrayed in today's Boston Evening American's exclusive features. They all appear at the Metropolitan Theater where the screen offers "College Rhythm," featuring three of today's Hollywood favorites. The beautiful creature on the left of the "About Faces" drawing leads one of te finest girls' orchestras in the world. That's why we urge you to visit the Metropolitan Theater and share in the entertainment

OF COURSE Fabien Sevitzy and the Grand Orchestra and dancing in the Platinum Salon are other features aside from the regular stage show headed by leading Broadway stars.

Beneath the drawings of each of today's "About Faces" series you will find a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of these celebrities. Use the letter "O" as a guide and your solutions should be forthcoming

To those who are successful in competing the entire week's "About Faces" series, the Boston Evening American offers a share of $25 in weekly cash prizes.

Get tomorrow's Boston Evening American early. Winners of last week's "About Faces" series by Art Moger, will be announced, then

Are you an "About Faces" winner?

CURLEY TO AID APPEAL DRIVE

Governor-elect James M. Curley will speak at the Citizens Appeal dinner next Monday night at the Copley Plaza.

The dinner will mark the formal opening of the Volunteers of America drive for $150,000 to enable them to continue their work of providing meals for hungry men and caring for the unfortunate. More than 3000 invitations have been sent out for the dinner, the cost of which has been assumed by local Kiwanis clubs as their contribution to the Volunteers.

Colonel Franklin Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News will deliver the keynote speech which will launch the drive.

Mrs. Frederick Thayer in Charge

THE NEW EMPIRE ROOM OF the Hotel Vendome was a beehive of activity yesterday at the luncheon at the bazaar given for the St. Monica's Home . . . just before Christmas these sales of beautiful and useful articles are particularly interesting and an innovation at this affair was the "bargain" table of second-hand knick-knacks which was presided over by Mrs. Henry Ogilby with the assistance of Mrs. Arthur Grannis.

Mrs. Frederick Thayer, in lovely black velvet and chiffon gown, and wearing a collar of pearls, was in charge of the delicious luncheon which was served to a large crowd of those interested in this charity.

Mrs. Hugh Pope in autumn brown and Mrs. E. M. Beals in leaf green swelled the coffers with the sales from their toy table.

Mrs. Charles W. Blodgett in becoming black and white presided behind a large table laden with hand work and sewing articles of many kinds . . .

The Sisters of St. Monica's were completely sold out early in the afternoon of home-made preserves and cakes made at the home . . . they are quite famous and sold like hot cakes.

Caroline Hunnewell to Go Abroad

BEHIND THE ARRAY OF SWEETS AND CONFECTIONS, Mrs. James M. Hunnewell and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin H. Ticknor, vended their attractive wares. Mrs. Hunnewell's daughter, Miss Caroline, a debutante of a few seasons past, is sailing soon for a winter in Switzerland and Germany for the winter sports. She is an expert ski enthusiast and a member of the newly-formed sports club of Boston.

Caroline Hunnewell

Miss Bessie Paine's attractive table was laden with toy scotties and other colorful things dear to childish hearts . . . there was Christmas in the air.

Mrs. Stuart Walker and Mrs. Max Whiting sold cakes and Mrs. Max Whiting displayed "blessed events" trousseaus.

At the flower table Mrs. Horace Soule was such an efficient saleslady she was completely cleaned out of everything in the way of flowers and plants. Very successful day and closed early for lack of things to sell.

JULIET SHELBY AVERS THAT ANY MAN WHO WISHES TO CAN KEEP HIS HAIR

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Arlen discovering the flight of the honeymooners, proposes that she and the boys, Bob and Ronald, chase after them.

CHAPTER 200

WHAT DICKY calls "the well known fat" was certainly in the fire. I realized that, as I rushed out of the door behind Avis Arlen, who was traveling at a double-quick pace toward the living room.

"Avis!" I called shrilly, but she either did not hear me or pretended she didn't, and, though my fists instinctively clinched as I followed her, the exigencies of good breeding forbade me even looking dour when I caught up to her, just as she accosted Bob and Carolyn.

"Listen, you folks!" she said excitedly, but keeping her voice low. "Something's slipped up, somewhere. Didn't Bill and Hank say that Mr. and Mrs. Ticer went across the fields that time when they saw the kitchen door open and thought Mary and Noel were coming out?"

She gave to Noel's name the slurring, caressing intonation which she always employs when speaking it, and again I felt my fingers curving into facile fists.

AVIS' PROPOSAL

"Yes, yes," Carolyn and Bob said in unison, and Ronald, after a swift look at Marion, added, "that's what they said."

"What have the Ticers got to do with it?" Marion demanded. "When I rushed down just now and told you Noel and Mary were gone, and that we must catch them at the car, you said to wait a minute, and we've been waiting; though why in the world—"

She was talking against time, I felt it, and I knew that she did, also. For there was a triumphant light in Avis' eyes which I was sure meant mischief.

"You won't find them at the car," Avis said. "They've been gone nearly ten minutes."

"Ten minutes!" Marion ejaculated weakly, but her tones lacked conviction and Avis swept relentlessly on.

"Yes, ten minutes. You either want to sleep at the switch or else—"

She paused, letting her implication sink in, and then turned dramatically to the others.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ticer are in the kitchen this minute. Ask Mrs. Graham if they aren't."

"Yes, they are there," I admitted coolly. "What of it?"

"Then who went across the fields ten minutes ago?" she asked. "Hank and Bill said they were the Ticers. Of course, the answer is easy. They must have been dressed in the Ticers' clothes."

"Good Lord!" Bob ejaculated, and caught Carolyn by the hand. "Come along, Carol! I see it all. Their new car was over at Ticer's. They're probably well on their way by now, but we ought to be able to head 'em off before they get off Long Island. I'm game to go down to Queens bridge and wait for 'em. What about the rest of you?"

"I don't think our mothers would stand for a stunt like that," Marion said doubtfully to Carolyn, and Carolyn pouted as she answered:

"I'm shouting sure mine wouldn't. She might not care about our cavorting around this end of the island, but she'd never stand for our going that far and racing as we'd have to. No, Bob; that's out."

"But I'm with you, boys," Avis spoke up quickly. "My mother wont care. In fact I won't tell her anything about it. I know the girls won't mind my going with you. Come on, let's go! Oh: I'm so excited!"

She was simulating girlish enthusiasm very prettily, and I knew she was appealing to the wild love of adventure—the rebellion against restraint—which is characteristic of Bob. I was sure of Ronald's reaction, but I wondered what Bob's response would be to her proposal.

Shiny Nose Treatment

Question: My nose has a most unbecoming shine. I have tried almost everything, even to eliminating sweets in my diet. Ice rubs seem to have no lasting effect in removing the shine. Do you know of anything that might help? B. S., South Boston.

Answer: Yes, several things might be beneficial. A shiny nose is best dimmed by curtailing down the intake of fatty foods. Give it an alcohol dry cleaning now and then. The slight condition beckons blackheads and large pores. When applying powder, put it on lightly. An ice rub once a day does help but be sure to have the ice covered with a thin piece of soft muslin cloth. Never allow it to come into direct contact with the skin. There is a new trick used by some of the Hollywood movie stars to prevent a shiny nose. To obtain this shiny nose trick write to the Beauty Department, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Question: Although my hair is still very thick, it is falling out by the handful. Do you think I should stop brushing my hair while it is falling out? P.E. Arlington.

Answer: Every hair pulled out by a brush is a dead hair, so the sooner it is out the more quickly will appear its successor. Take the hair in small strands, give a quick pull. This treatment rouses up blood vessels that supply nourishment to the hair roots.

Homes and Frocks Begin to Anticipate a Gay Holiday Mood

YOU'RE GOING to have genuine need for a sprightly, somewhat formal afternoon frock from now on—for wintry afternoon at-homes, for the numerous friendly dinners and buffet get-togethers that are increasingly popular, or for the casual theater-evening. For this cheerful hopping-around mood we offer a slimly tailored Russian tunic of fine gold lame over a bias skirt of mossy black crepe. It is budget, yet not too much so for its important purpose in life, being just under twenty dollars.

A smart and interesting home background, possible to the most ardent budgeteers, is shown with the frock. It is teeming with gift ideas, as well . . . the pink alabaster candy jar the model holds, the tea-and table with a ledge, holding a pottery basket-effect jar, the square scrolled rail table, the exquisite Lenox china gold and white urn on the mantel, the center mantelpiece of pale green scalloped pottery, the brass rail which is a newly fashionable Victorianism, with matching brass andirons and fire set, and the plum-colored plaid chair. The new washable wallpaper is chartreuse, the broadloom and chair are plum.

For information on frock or furniture illustrated, all from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gift for Girl Friend's Mother

By Mrs. Beeckman

Dear Mrs Beeckman

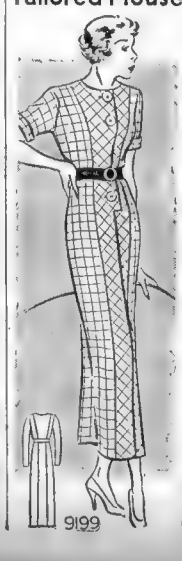

I spent a few days at the home of my girl friend's mother. I have not known this girl very long and this was my first meeting with the mother. I should like to send the mother something. What would you suggest? G.

A purse would be an excellent gift, either a handsome, practical one for day use; or a dressier one, say of black velvet, for afternoon wear, or one, say, of dull gold lame, for evening wear. Or several plain white, beautifully sheer handkerchiefs, monogrammed with her two or three initials. Or a set of fountain pen and pencil, with her initials or the facsimile of her name imprinted on them. Or a small folding traveling clock, which she could also use on her dresser or desk.

Tailored House Frock for Bride

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9199

It's a house frock smart enough to satisfy the newest bride among us and slenderizing enough to flatter the more mature housewife—this nicely tailored coat-like dress. The long, sweeping panels, back and front, are as slimming as they are chic—the smartly different bodice closing is one of Fashion's newest ideas, as are the bargain buttons with which it is trimmed. And that pretty, round neckline is as young as it can be. Choose a gay plaid or checked cotton fabric for this frock. There's nothing like them to raise our spirits of a grey winter day. And for those who prefer them, long sleeves are included in the pattern.

Pattern 9199 may be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 requires four yards 36-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th street, New York, N. Y.

Two-Toned Satin

ONE of the smartest hostess gowns seen in New York shops is fashioned of a new two-toned satin-petal pink on one side and pale blue on the other.

"MANGO" — a favored new orange shade being featured in Paris mid-season showings—is noted in new Palm Beach collections along with printed silks, synthetics and cottons—all of which are important not only for frocks but for blouses with soft tweed suits.

Out-Smarting the Time Factor

By Josephine Culbertson

The importance of the time factor in the play of Contract Bridge hands should be known to everyone who is not a complete beginner. It is most obvious in the play of notrump hands. If the declarer gets his suit or suits set up before the opponents set up theirs, he fulfills his contract, but if the defense wins the race to set up tricks, the contract is defeated.

The declarer, however, should not completely give up every time that he sees that he has lost out in the race to set up suits. Quite frequently the defense can be caught napping and an all-important trick which would otherwise have to be set up can be stolen from the hand of an unsuspecting defender.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♢	1♠ (1)	1NT	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A highly doubtful overcall. East, who was not vulnerable, put in this bid in an effort to keep the opponents from getting to game.

East's overcall worked out well in that it indicated to West the best opening lead. The spade four was led, the seven was played from dummy, and East's Queen was topped by South's King. South now realized that there were only eight tricks in sight. A ninth could be set up in hearts, but if the opponents won the first round of that suit with the Ace they could immediately run four spade tricks and set the contract. South, however, marking East with the heart Ace on the bidding, saw a chance to fool East into co-operating. At trick 2 he led a low diamond from his hand and won with the Queen in dummy, concealing from the defense the fact that the diamond suit was solid.

The heart ten was now led and East made the fatal error of not going up with his Ace. East of course knew that his partner's opening lead was pretty surely away from the spade Ace, but he could not tell for sure whether West originally held three or four cards in one suit and he accordingly did not know definitely that South did not hold a second spade stopper. In addition, East, at this early stage of the play, could not tell that South, after stealing one heart trick, would be able to run nine tricks, as he did not know, although perhaps he should have, that South held the Ace and Jack of diamonds. Furthermore, just as South had hoped, the play of the heart ten from dummy led East to believe that some sort of heart finesse was going to be taken.

Of course, when East ducked the lead of the heart ten from dummy, South went up with the King in his own hand and was then able to run nine tricks.

Ringlet Coiffure

THE SOFT RINGLET coiffure—not sausage curls—high on the head is favored among evening hair stylings. Done in the manner of Dumas, it is often accented by a discreet little rhinestone trim in coil roll design, which is decidedly new and smart among the new hair ornaments.

THE VOGUE for the high-throated shoe continues, many daytime models in the favored black and rich tobacco brown, in suedes, kid and patent featuring the practical scuffless heel. Ends Wars by Enlisting Women

By Sheilah Graham

IT LOOKS as though the ladies are going to play an important fighting role in the next war—if there is a next war.

Reward is the latest country to decree that not only must women throw their husbands and sons to the maws of war, but they must throw themselves as well.

Which piece of news should gladden the hearts of all far thinking people, or people who know the inside dope on feminine psychology.

Why? Because when the day arrives that women are universally accepted as cannon fodder, that will be the day when "Death will be written to the finish pastime of war.

You can make men jump smartly to attention by just standing at them. You can make them give up their homes and everything they hold most dear by giving them a lot of blather about patriotism.

But the ladies? No.

At the poor NOT say, "Theirs not to do and die, theirs but to question why," and they will think you very much for your thought, but they have no wish to ride into the valley of death.

I had better state quickly that women are not cowards. That is not the reason they are shy of warfare. They enjoy a fight as much as the males—perhaps more.

You can't fool the ladies. What has any nation ever received out of a fight with another one that was worth keeping afterwards? Death, misery, maimed manhood and unemployment are the only tangible results of every war.

Ladies in uniform would be about as happy as cats that have been robbed of their kittens.

At the first chirp of the new season they would want to change their clothes for something newer and more stylish. And if they were not satisfied on this score—and I have a hunch they would not be—all the threats of court martials in the land could not prevent mutiny in the female ranks.

Use Pomade, Give Daily Care

By Juliet Shelby

ALWAYS I have maintained that any man could keep his hair if he gave his scalp a normal amount of pampering and used some of the time with which he's supposed to be endowed. No hair can survive daily hot and cold shocks under a shower, or combat the evils of some of the preparations men slather on to keep their hair in place, instead of bruising it and coaxing their natural scalp oils to give the hair a gloss and body.

And not only is the preparation I am recommending today excellent for candidates for admission to the bald head brotherhood, but those unfortunate women whose bobbed hair shows indications of losing its original glory would do well to borrow freely of friend husband's or the boy friend's supply.

Not until man notices his nude temples thin spots on top of his scalp and a general "mousy" look of his hair does he think of scalp care. Then he searches frantically for the magic that will grow healthy hair on his toughened and neglected scalp.

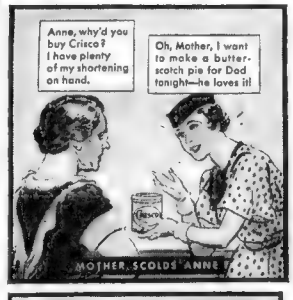

Men should begin caring for their hair when they have hair to care for. Twenty-one is an excellent age to make such a resolution. Avoid washing away the natural scalp oils, protect the hair from strong sun rays by wearing a hat or keeping the scalp well lubricated with a tonic or pomade and brush it, instead of rubbing it as if it were wire!

So president in America has become the bald head that foremost hair specialists have after much experimenting, produced an excellent scalp preparation for men.

If you wish to know the name of this scalp pomade and where it can be bought telephone Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000. If you prefer writing for this information send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Have mercy on your stomach

Cook with CRISCO—it digests quickly

You don't need to take the fry out of eating in order to protect your digestion. You can gladly say "yes" to wholesome Crisco pies and crispy Crisco-fried foods! Yes, they can be good for you—because Crisco is the digestible vegetable shortening that doesn't burden the delicate stomach.

Most every day something is fried in your house. Is it grease-soaked and hard to digest—or is it brown and crispy the way Crisco-fried foods are? Crisco is the heat-tested shortening to seal food quickly in toasty brown—which prevents fat from soaking into the food. That's why Crisco-fried foods digest quickly!

But let your common sense tell you. Look at Crisco—see how it piles up like thick country cream on a spoon! Taste its sweetness. Why, there's nothing like Crisco, because Crisco is made from digestible vegetable oils by its own secret process!

When you buy Crisco, look for the familiar blue-and-white label. Crisco's vacuum-sealed can is a health-protection to you.

CORONATION BUTTERSCOTCH PIE

(a pie that doesn't look like a pie—it has 3 layers like a cake)

The Filling:

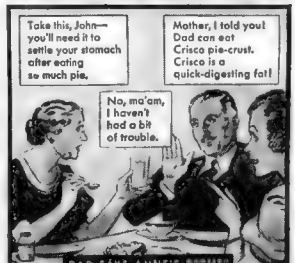

2 tablespoons Crisco	1¼ cups brown sugar
½ cup flour	½ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks, lightly beaten	2 cups milk (hot)

To make filling—Mix sugar, flour, salt. Add milk and cook until mixture thickens. Cool before removing from stove; stir in beaten yolks and Crisco. Let stand while preparing delicious sweet-tasting Crisco pastry.

Dependable Crisco Pastry

2 cups flour	½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup Crisco	ice-cold water

To make pastry—Sift flour and salt. Cut in Crisco with two knives until the size of peas. Add water (6 to 8 tablespoons) enough to hold dry ingredients together. Divide the dough into 3 parts and roll each out to a sheet. Cut into rounds, 2 or 3 inches up the center. Place separately on baking sheets, pricking each well. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) until delicately brown. Put pie together in layer cake, with filling on top also. Cover with meringue made by beating 2 egg whites thoroughly with 4 tablespoons sugar. Brown slightly in slow oven (325°F.). Serve as soon as cool.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of the cooking and shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

FISCH FITS INTO KIDNAPING TALE TOLD BY CURTIS

By LOU WEDEMAR
Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service

(Fifth in a series of exclusive stories dealing with hitherto unpublished facts about the Lindbergh case.)

New York, Nov. 23—A "poor little furrier" to some of his friends, Isidor Fisch was a "big shot" in the fur market.

According to Henry Uhlig, a close friend, Fisch conducted his business in the fur market with great mystery.

But there is no doubt that he was more than an insignificant figure there. People in the district centering at Sixth avenue at [illegible] street, where the fur market occupies lofts on several side streets, have interesting stories to tell about him.

Uhlig says Fisch always left him if by chance they went to the market together, and went off about his own business. He would see Fisch with prominent furriers, but Fisch would only nod to him and never made introductions.

LINKS IN CURTIS STORY

Others in the fur market told of seeing Fisch with "big rolls of money" after the kidnaping, another of Fisch's friends, Carl Henkel, says.

Fisch never showed that money to Henkel or Uhlig, they say, but "talked big all the time."

It is an interesting coincidence among the thousands of coincidences in the Lindbergh case that the fur market fringes on the hotel district where John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder, said he met "John," one of the kidnapers. One hotel Curtis frequented was also frequented by Fisch.

A restaurant in which Curtis pointed out to a friend of Colonel Lindbergh another of the supposed "gangsters" was once patronized by Fisch. And, strangely, Curtis told of a "Scandinavian Jew" who was one of the gang. Why he added that touch of color, if his retraction of the story was genuine, is just another mystery.

RESEMBLED FISCH'S FRIENDS

But suppose for a moment that Fisch was the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, and that, as Curtis said, the kidnapers had intended to collect twice for the dead child, the story told Curtis fits remarkably close to one that might have been conceived by someone who knew Fisch.

The personalities in Curtis's hoax fit very closely to life personalities associated with Fisch. Regardless of this there is a geographical connection between Fisch's activities and those of the possibly mythical gang Curtis told about.

Fisch the "big shot" was almost certainly a forger. In return for Bruno Richard Hauptmann's $[illegible] he gave him a receipt on the letter head of Knoen & Miller, a fur house formerly on Sixth avenue, New York city. The firm, so far as it has been learned, had gone out of business in 1930.

HAUPTMANN DUPED

The bill, investigators discovered, was typed for Fisch by another roomer in the East 127th street house, a stenographer who thought she was doing him a favor, according to Mrs. Hauptmann. But the bill was fraudulent and the signatures had been forged by Fisch.

Again Fisch, the "big shot," took thousands of dollars for investment in stock of the Knickerbocker Pie [illegible] which was supposed to be a pie bakery concern. Fisch, before sailing for Germany, wrote the Secretary of State that the corporation had gone out of business—in fact had never begun to do business.

According to Mrs. Hauptmann, Fisch told her husband that he had thousands of dollars worth of furs stored in warehouses throughout the city. He never took Hauptmann to the warehouses and after his death a search for the Fisch furs failed to locate them. It is possible, of course, that they exist hidden under some other name which Fisch may have used to cover his activities of his other [illegible]. But Hauptmann could not find them.

DEPOSIT BOX HUNTED

Fisch spoke often of having a safe deposit box. After his death a delicatessen-shop owner, who had given, lent or paid to him $1500, obtained an order for the opening of the box. The box was found to be empty according to one report; another is that in it were a few scraps of paper. But there was nothing of monetary value in it, at any rate.

Had Fisch, then, another safety box? That is a question which haunts the friends to whom he owes money. It also interests some Lindbergh case investigators.

They believe the box may contain many interesting and valuable items. Receipts for furs, mortgages; deeds (Fisch owned one piece of property, Louis Blitzer, his attorney, says); bankbooks. Perhaps, they say, it even contains $[illegible] of the Lindbergh ransom money, which has never been found.

(The mysterious financial dealings of Isidor Fisch are told tomorrow.)

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

The East wind is blowing bitter on Business and the old bullet wounds must throb and rankle.

That is the only way I can account for the blast the head of Kiwanis let off a day or two ago in rebuttal of a twelve-year-old attack. Business men, like elephants, must have long memories.

What vexed the Kiwanis gentleman was what Sinclair Lewis wrote in a book called "Babbitt" which was published, I think, in 1922.

Robert E. Rogers

That was the book, you will remember, in which Lewis gave a vivid portrayal of the weekly luncheon meeting of the Booster's Club of Zenith City of the State of Winnemac.

Superficially the meeting resembled a Rotary or Kiwanis or Lions meeting, as I have frequently attended them for purposes of food, fellowship, and oratory.

The Boosters of Zenith called one another by their first names and made the welkin ring with the kind of songs that are printed on folders to be used at banquets.

But also there was a lot of pageantry and horseplay of a supposedly comic kind, described in Mr. Lewis' most cutting manner. And can that man cut?

It is apparently the memory of the burlesque, remembered across 12 fat and lean years, that made the Eminent and Exalted Kiwanian spring to his feet, unleash his voice, and remind his hearers that first names are no crime, that songs help the sad and sick and sorrowful along their way, that a little innocent horseplay now and then is relished by the wisest men, that the hearts that beat at the weekly luncheons of the service clubs are hearts of gold, and if this Upton Sinclair Lewis, whoever he is, doesn't like this country why doesn't he go back where he came from—which happens to be Wisconsin, where they breed football players and LaFollettes.

Flogs Dead Horse

He said it much more vehemently and eloquently, however. The idea seems to be that if Sing Sing can have its circuses and bands and parades and fraternizing with visiting firemen, the service clubs are just as good as they.

As the immortal Gilbert once sang in protest against this snobbish attitude of looking down on the aristocracy,

Hearts just as kind and fair
May beat in Louisburg Square
As in the lowly air
Of the North End . .

The question is, however, why is our Kiwanis friend flogging a dead horse at this late date? Mr. Lewis has forgotten it. He has left Babbitt behind, has gone on, taking in his stride the medical profession, the Man Who Knew Coolidge, the American wife in Europe, the Unwomanly Woman, and the hotel keeper.

The American people have forgotten it, being much more concerned about the way the business man functioned as a business man in the years just previous to 1929.

Even Mr. Mencken has forgotten it, he who was named as co-libeler by the orator.

Anyone who has talked much in public, as Kiwanian presidents must do, realizes that always there comes an occasion when you find yourself ready to go to an important luncheon or dinner or barbecue with no speech prepared. You have been too busy or something, put it off, forgotten it.

Chances Missed

What to do? You dig down into your file of past efforts—if you are a tidy soul and most business men and Kiwanians are—and you dig up that splendid speech you made at the East Burlap Village Improvement Society in 1923.

It went so well that you repeated it elsewhere in 1924-5-6, when it began to get shiny at the elbows and baggy at the knees. So you dig it up, add a hasty topical reference and trot it out again. Usually it falls flat.

I can think of so many interesting and important things a representative business man of today might be talking about.

An apology for the attitude of business during the boom is still topical material. An explanation of why business is determined to block the Roosevelt program is another.

But to dig up the carcass of poor old Babbitt, now 12 years in his grave, and flog the dead bones once more—like Charles Dickens' dwarf Quilp flogging the wooden figurehead at his wharf on the Thames—it is in the words of the late Artemus Ward "2 mutch, 0 2 mutch!"

GIRL'S BITE MAY MEAN END FOR MACKEREL DOG ARRESTED

For allegedly biting 16-year-old Josephine DiSanti, above, of Leverett street, West End, Boston's famous "mackerel" dog is "under arrest" and may face sentence of death. The dog's name is "Bonapart," alias "Leo." He's been in trouble before, according to police. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

DEATH

POLICE 'ARREST' LEO AGAIN

GIRL VICTIM, 16, IS TREATED FOR BACK WOUND

Joe Rizzo's dog, most famous or infamous in the city and the world's only genuine, undisputed mackerel dog, was arrested again today for violation of his official probation and faces sentence of death.

He bit, or is alleged to have bitten, Josephine DiSanto, 16, of Leverett street, West End.

She was treated at Haymarket Relief Station for a back wound and the dog was locked up in a cell at Station 1, later to be taken before the court and probably ordered destroyed—the sentence deferred upon the occasion of his last law violation two years ago.

Joe Rizzo's dog is known as Leo. He used to be known as Garabaldi but Rizzo considered a change of handle expedient several years ago when all his neighbors signed a petition seeking restraint of a biting and barking "black and white dog known as Garabaldi." The change of name effected, there remained no Garabaldi in existence when the petition was complete and so the neighborhood campaign collapsed.

Leo is most white, but a little black and looks here and there, respectively, like a spitz and a bull dog. He was definitely established as a genuine mackerel dog when, because of his barking and his biting, he first came to the attention of the court in 1932.

Petted and Fussed? Inventor Says No

MOTHER FIGHTS TO KEEP HER DAUGHTERS

Hearing in the bitterly contested petition of Mrs. Hannah W. Leahy of West street, Marblehead, for the custody of her four small granddaughters, resumed today in Essex probate court.

Frank W. Kells, 48-year-old Washington inventor and widower calmly took the witness stand and denied that he had "petted and fussed" with pretty Mrs. Louise Mullen Leahy, 34, the children's mother, while he was a boarder at her house in the Capital city.

"Were you in love with her?" asked Frank W. Wallis, attorney for the elder Mrs. Leahy.

"I liked her."

"Were you in love with her, I asked you."

"I might say I even went that far."

"Did you ever ask her to marry you?"

"I don't think I did, in so many words, but that's what I meant."

Operation Planned

Kells was asked if he had advocated that her husband be 'sterilized,' and he said 'No, I did not.'

A letter was then introduced and read, a letter patched and pieced together which Kells admitted having written.

It said in part, according to the evidence:

"We are going to have Old Jack operated upon, as in the case of all defectives."

Kells admitted that Old Jack was Captain John Leahy, the younger Mrs. Leahy's husband, then in a Washington hospital.

"What kind of operation did you mean in the letter?"

"That means an operation of sterilization," Kells answered.

Mrs. Leahy, the mother of the children, who is called "incompetent and unfit" to have their custody by her mother-in-law, denied as Kells had done, that he was in the habit of kissing her. Wallis asked her:

"Did you ever express a desire to marry Kells?"

"No I did not."

"Did Kells ever kiss you in the presence of your children?"

"I think he did when he was leaving for Washington from Marblehead last December, but that was the first and only time I ever kissed him," she said.

Later in the testimony repeated references were made to automobile trips that she had been on with Kells.

Not Same Room

They stopped overnight near Philadelphia and again in Bridgeport, Ct., she said. She was asked:

"Isn't it a fact that Kells occupied the same room with you at a tourist home in Bridgeport?"

"It is certainly not a fact," she answered.

Mrs. Hannah Kells grandmother of the children whose fate will be decided by Judge Edward B. O'Brien, told how she obtained the letters which were used for evidence.

When her daughter-in-law had discarded them, torn them to fragments and thrown into the wastebasket she said, she gathered up the pieces, and put them together again. Then she read them.

Miss Ellen Leahy of Marblehead, sister-in-law of the defendant, told the court that the latter had given her letters to mail to Kells. She had photostatic copies made and also contributed to the piecing together of fragments of Kells letters to her, she testified.

WATCH OUT
Boy Sought After Gems Vanish

Police are seeking Anthony De Vato, 17, of Thorndike street, Roxbury. Shortly after Anthony left home his father missed a $100 diamond ring and a wrist watch.

When the boy returned he said according to police, he had pawned them for $3. He was given $3 to get them again. Some time later Anthony's brother reported that he had heard that the boy, having acquired $6, had taken a bus for New York.

YOUTH ASSISTS POLICE; GETS PROBATION

Eli Smith, 23, of Morton street, Mattapan, was convicted in Suffolk superior court of stealing an automobile. On his way home as a guest in a police car, he aided Patrolman Joseph Cullinane capture two youths on a similar charge.

When Smith was brought into court to be sentenced, Cullinane was prepared to tell the judge how helpful he had been, but it was not necessary. For he was placed on probation.

Harry Woldsky of Wales street, Roxbury, who was convicted with Smith and another youth, was also placed on probation.

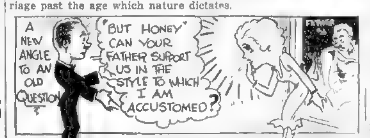

But the third was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction. He is Benjamin Carro of Westwood street, Dorchester.

Dowries Proposed; Marriage Aid Asked

RELIGIOUS EDITOR DISCUSSES LOVE IDEALS OF DAUGHTERS

Dowries vs. doles?

William McDermott, Chicago religious editor, discussing frankly the marriage prospects of his own daughters in the December issue of Good Housekeeping, proposes a dowry to help depression-struck men to establish homes rather than delay marriage past the age which nature dictates.

It is his belief that there would be less dole if there were more dowries for, he argues, the average college graduate has a far better chance of getting a job and making a success of it if he is married, living in his own home with a wife, who is interested in his career.

Urging that the problem of marrying at the opportune time is not one for youth, "struggling against greater odds than ever to get ahead," but for parents to solve, Mr. McDermott said:

"If either of my daughters should marry a man in training for a profession or business, I would urge her to study along with him, to act as his secretary and assistant, as well as his encourager, and to aid him in every way to succeed. She would be gleaning much of that which will occupy him for a lifetime and which interests him most.

"I would be willing to subsidize my sons-in-law for the first years of marriage for the sake of my daughters' happiness.

"Why should I consider my obligation to my daughters completed when they have finished college, any more than when they have finished high school?

"I believe it is fully as good an investment—and, almost, if not fully as important—to spend two or three thousand dollars, or more if necessary, in helping my daughters, if they need it, to marry happily during their mating time, and in assisting their husbands to complete their life-work preparation, as it is to see them through their earlier education."

FAN DANCE
MURDER AND SUICIDE IN SEDAN

By Associated Press

Detroit, Nov. 23—An attempt to reach a marital reconciliation ended early this morning in the death of George A. Phillips, 26, and his fan dancer wife, Hilda, 22.

Police found Phillips dying and his wife dead in their sedan on Lafayette boulevard. Each had a bullet wound in the head.

Phillips died at the hospital. Police said he was unable to make a statement.

Two pairs of dancing shoes were found in the car. Mrs. Minnie Phillips, the dead man's mother, told police the young couple had separated because Phillips objected to his wife's fan and shawl dancing in beer gardens.

Police found a .38-calibre revolver in the car.

PARENTS FINALLY PERMIT OPERATION ON STUDENT

Amherst, Nov. 23—If Albert A. Miller, class of '38, of St. Louis, lives, he will owe his life to Arthur S. Huey, Amherst senior, who won a five-hour argument over the telephone.

When Miller complained of pains in the abdomen Dr. Frank S. [illegible], college physician, diagnosed the condition as acute appendicitis and a probable rupture. A Springfield specialist stated emphatically that if Miller were to live an immediate operation was imperative.

Huey was asked to telephone the parents and obtain permission for the operation.

The parents refused point blank, on religious grounds. Huey pleaded, argued, used every weapon of persuasion to induce them to alter their decision while their son was yet alive, but to no avail.

Huey then tried friends in St. Louis, getting them to intercede. He called the parents back. He called more friends.

And after five hours of unremitting telephoning he finally obtained the permission.

An operation was performed and the appendix removed. But the diagnosed rupture was found to have been a fact, and peritonitis had set in.

Miller's condition is said to be critical. He is given a 50-50 chance of pulling through.

People whose hearts skip beats, flutter fariolista in excitement and do occasional flip flops will be interested in the cardiac history of H. G. Wells and his family.

The novelist has had that sort of a trick ticker all his remembering days. So had his father, two brothers and several uncles.

All of them save Mr. Wells keeled over and went out like a flash, but not one until long past his 70th year and some were in the 80's. Mr. Wells is now in his late 60's and he hopes to pass out just as fortunately.

The Jimmy Walkers and the Michael Arlens have become a familiar London foursome.

They are to be seen at the same table frequently at Simpson's, the Savoy or Claridge's. Arlen is riding the crest of a fresh literary popularity with his most recent blood and thunder travesty, "Hell! Said the Duchess."

Thriller Readers

Professional dancers, it seems to me, have the most strikingly beautiful names in the public eye.

Prettiest of all is Kendall Lee, with Joan Sawyer a runner up.

Then there were Irene Castle, Barbara Bennett, Eleanor Ambrose, Mae Murray, Marjorie Moss, Yolande, Margaret Hawksworth, Carrie Luce, Leonore Hughes, Bessie McCoy, Harriet Hoctor and others as beautiful.

The most relentless reader of the mystery novel is the humorist Will Cuppy. He has devoured the entire output for 15 years. Sometimes he reads two or three a night—night is the only time mysteries are worth a hoot—and sleeps all day.

The late Otto Kahn was insatiable in his thirst for the shocker. And Chief Justice Hughes never makes a train trip without being well fortified with the detective tale.

One of New York's most expert miniature painters is not only almost stone deaf and blind in one eye but has only part vision in the other.

Under this tremendous physical handicap, she turns out astonishing work. While for many of us the day is a bust if the breakfast bacon isn't the right crisp.

Gov. Ely Remarks On Sucker Population Of Massachusetts ↑ A. A. U.'s Momentous Decisions; McKechnie ↓ Lacks Trade Material

Austen Lake

AS ONE WHO IS ABOUT to retire from public life with few of his original illusions left, Governor Joe Ely ups and sez that legalized racing in his state is a form of public depravity which points toward moral breakdown. And he thinks, mebbe, that $200,000 is a reasonable estimate of the sum vacuumed daily from the pockets of his "sucker population" by lotteries, nigger pools, guessing games, crap-shooting, etc.

Well there is no known cure for suckerism, since the trait is inherent in the human race. And the sucker population which Governor Joe mentions, embraces about 90 per cent of the people in his state, excepting only some of the clergy, inmates of his asylums and kids of grammar school age.

By wish of the people, opportunities for suckerhood are now very great in Massachusetts, and will soon be enhanced by the entrance of dog racing.

This is the natural aftermath of being squeezed into the legislative corsets of the prohibition era and the people's desire to expand their liberties in a sudden gulp of freedom's fresh air.

Just now the people want suckerism in their midst and have so voted.

BY ADMITTING THAT THE daily toll of sucker money is $200,000, Governor Ely implies that the state is denying itself about 99 per cent of its just tax income, in legalizing pari-mutuel betting and, at the same time, refusing to recognize the more popular and convenient forms of betting vice.

In the simple reasoning of the public, if it is okay to stake their dollars on the foggy probabilities of the horse and dog racing, which is open to assorted kinds of trickery, then it must be all right for them to call into a gambling joint and risk their money on the whirl of the little white moth ball in the roulette bowl, or on the clackety-clatter of the freckled dice bones.

Or, it is all right to traffic in the nigger pools, football-guessing coupons or sweepstake lotteries, which are operated from various hideouts in the city and suggest collusion with the authorities.

These do a thriving trade in which they improve their natural working percentage by sometimes lamming off with the entire kitty, or by flooding the market with counterfeit sweep tickets.

OF THE ASSORTED SUCKER rackets, the bogus sweeps tickets are safest and most profitable to their operators. For every one authentic sweeps ticket sold, there are three phonies foisted on the citizens, who buy the phonies with the same simple faith that they do the originals.

Both the imitation and the genuine sweeps tickets are against the law, so the law can hardly move against the cheats without also moving against the honest venders.

Anyway, the defrauded buyers seldom know they have been gypped until it is too late and the gypsy salesmen have scrammed off with 100 per cent of their take.

ALL THESE FORMS OF GAMBLING being, like the table sports, unrecognized by the state, they are not subject to tax, except such outpatients' cash as is wired to the tracks to be put through the mutuel ringers and later skimmed for the treasury.

But the people are conscious of their folly, including some very chaste, religious persons who are devoted to their families and merely enjoying an emotional romp, from which, presently, they will suddenly recover, a little out of breath, and vote the horse and dog tracks out and, maybe, starve the illicit gambling businesses for lack of interest.

WELL ENOUGH OF THAT. The A. A. U. "fathers" are having a terrible time to decide whether boys who serve as life-guards at the summer beaches for board and a modest salary, should be ranked as professionals and forbidden to swim in amateur competition.

This is a sample of the profound problems that cause the A. A. U. "fathers'" brains to steam and make it necessary to vote themselves a free trip to Miami in December, where they will live at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel amid Oriental luxury.

Amateur Athlete, the A. A. U. publication, announces, "Bathing suits, tuxedoes and golf clubs will be part of the equipment needed" at Miami.

Meanwhile, the kid athletes, whose efforts in track, swimming and boxing provided the funds from which the "fathers'" trip is paid, are digging down into their own jeans and apron to pay their team expenses to meets and tournaments, riding on buses and eating shoe-box lunches to save money.

MANAGER BILL McKECHNIE of the Braves, in Louisville, is in the peculiar position of wanting to make trades for new strength, but not daring to let his few stars like Berger, Brandt, Frankhouse, Whitney and Urbanski go. Neither has he a cash reserve to tap.

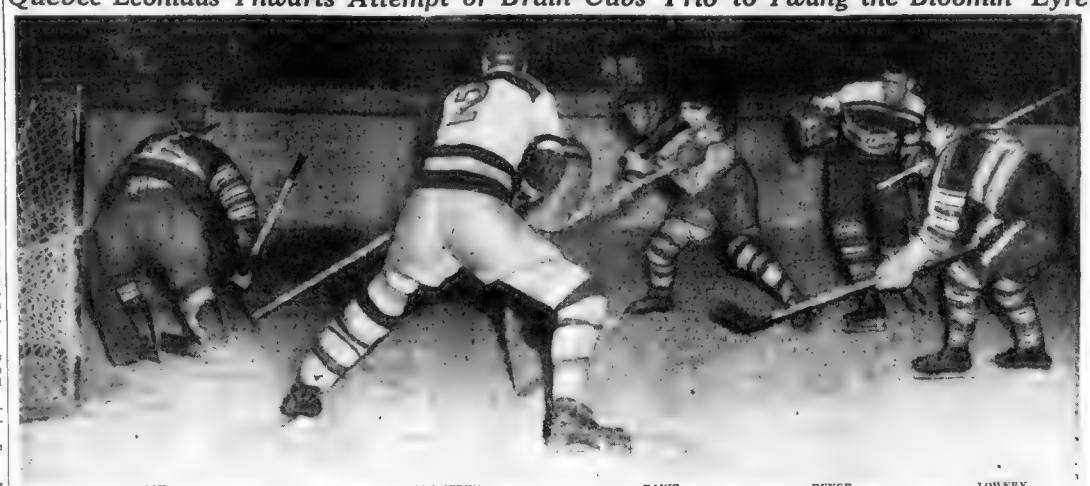

Recently Fuchs remarked that the Braves had spent more than $600,000, real money, on players like Art Shires, Oscar Eckhardt, Wesley Schulmerich and half a hundred others.

For years the club has spent its annual profits on new players. But last season there were no profits. And now, like Mother Hubbard in the nursery jingle, the cupboard is bare.

BRIDGEWATER COLLEGE OF VIRGINIA is indignant, positively in a tantrum, at the claim of Knox College of Illinois to the all-time defeat record. Knox has lost 26 straight, but Bridgewater points with pride to its string of 29 consecutive losses . . . The news-letters sent out by the National Boxing Association, of which E. C. Foster of Providence is president, are the most refreshing, naive and artless documents in my experience. Foster writes he had intended to put Maxie Rosenbloom's light heavyweight title to a vote among the N. B. A. group. Only, Maxie got himself beaten by Bob Olin, which prompted Prexy Foster to write, "For the peace of all concerned, it would be wise for us to acknowledge Olin as champion." Being one of those nebulous, cloud bodies with more bulk than power, it would hardly have changed Olin's status no matter what the N. B. A. decided to do about him.

Helmet Saves Bessler From Skull Fracture

By Bill Grimes

On every appearance they have made on the road, Bruins and Cubs have been ridiculed by the National and Canadian-American League fans for wearing helmets.

But it was fortunate indeed for Phil Bessler and the game itself that the Cub rookie was protected last night at the Arena when he was thrown heavily by Bob McCully, Quebec, otherwise there would have been another serious if not fatal accident.

Bessler raced in a Quebec territory with the puck. At the defense he was met by McCully, who managed to hit him partly with his body but mostly with his knee.

Bessler shot into the air and then fell, his shoulders, rump and heels hitting the ice simultaneously.

He had thrown his head forward but when he struck the ice it snapped over. The blow could be heard all over the Arena.

From the press coop it appeared as though he landed directly on the most heavily padded section of his helmet. He was rendered insensible, and it required two or three minutes to bring him around.

CUBS WIN THIRD IN ROW

Now, despite the fact that his helmet affords fine protection for such a fall, Bessler's head was split and required three stitches by Dr. Martin Crotty after the game.

There is no doubt in my mind that Bessler would have received a fractured skull but for the fact that he was wearing a helmet, and, although I have advocated head gears for many years, I am now more fully convinced that the Bruins and Cubs are establishing a custom, which will be mandatory within a few years.

In a none too interesting game Cubs defeated Quebec Beavers 3 to 1, to win their third straight game.

Frank Jerwa was the star of the game with two goals.

Since the Cubs came back from Quebec Frank has scored no less than nine goals and is leading the Can-Am League. He popped home a goal in Providence, during the 3-3 tie and then accounted for one tally in the opening game at the Arena.

CUNNINGHAM CLINCHES IT

Down in Philly, last Saturday, he added another marker to his individual record, and then on Tuesday he came up with four of the five Cub markers and assisted on the fifth.

In the first period last night, less than four minutes after the first face off, Frank stole the puck at his own blue line during a five-man Quebec attack.

With no one to beat but Abby Cox, Frank raced through the center zone and into Quebec territory with the Beavers chasing madly in his wake. He went right in on Cox and then let fly for a clean beat and the first tally of the night.

Again in the second period, it was Frank who started and also finished another scoring play. He picked up a loose puck and was off in a flash down center ice with Bert McInenly, who had broken off the defense.

At the blue line he passed out to McInenly, who immediately returned the puck and Frank was inside the Beaver outer defense with Cox again at his mercy. Flip went the puck and the Cubs were two goals out in front.

After Jack Crispin had teamed with Leo Queenville for the lone Quebec goal, Bill Cunningham assured the Cubs of their first victory on home ice by duplicating Frank Jerwa's first period rush.

Like his teammate, Cunningham caught the Quebec team down the ice and rifled a shot by Cox for the third and final Cub tally.

CASEY ANXIOUS TO END REIGN WITH WIN

By Dave Egan

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23—Eleven iron men of Yale are ready to play Harvard tomorrow.

That is the story today, as the Yale campus still rings with the story of Yale's victory over Princeton last week. The same eleven, according to Ducky Pond, will start the game with Harvard.

The Elis have been made an overwhelming favorite in the betting, simply because of their victory of last Saturday. But Princeton, undefeated and untied, was a huge favorite over Yale.

In these traditional games past experiences mean nothing. The Princeton team found that out when a Yale team suddenly went berserk and whaled the tripe out of them.

Harvard may do the same. Eddie Casey can charge his pupils with energy, as he did last year. He is trying to make this game a winning one, simply because of the fact that he is through regardless of the score.

Master Watt will be a surprise starter. He is a stumpy little man the nephew of the great Dan Hurley of Cambridge, with a defensive flair which has won him the position from Hedbloom.

The price on Yale is 2-1, which means exactly as much as the 2-1 price on Princeton against Yale a week back. Harvard should not win, but at least, the Crimson may win.

The squad, for the first time this season, is physically fit. Moseley is the key man, and Moseley is ready to go. He can run and pass and kick, which constitute the end and all of football playing.

Brittle, he has been kept out of the game since he was injured.

Do not be surprised if he goes through the game with Yale for the

Crimson Can Win Objective If It Goes "All Out"

By H. R. "TACK" HARDWICK
All Time, All-American End at Harvard

Harvard and Yale meet in their "main objective" tomorrow.

In the minds of many graduates of each of these old institutions, the success or failure of the season depends practically entirely on the outcome of this one game.

To them a drab, unsatisfactory preliminary season culminating in a final victory spells success.

For example, in 1930, Harvard lost to West Point, Dartmouth, Fordham and Holy Cross and was held to a 13-13 tie by William and Mary (in which Mary was magnanimously and gallantly acclaimed and William ignominiously and characteristically censured. It is reported Mary still remarks to William, "If you had only kicked that goal after my second touchdown, etc etc. . . .").

Surely that season's record gave scant basis for elation. Then Harvard defeated Yale 13 to 0. The earlier defeats were forgiven, and forgotten.

The reverse is likewise true, as was concretely evidenced by the Harvard 1931 season—the first under the Casey regime. The colors of Bates, New Hampshire, West Point, Texas, Virginia, Dartmouth and Holy Cross were lowered on successive Saturdays—a notable achievement.

In this series of victories, Harvard piled up a total of 149 points to its opponents' 26. Then Yale squeaked out a 3 to 0 victory, and those three small points attained sufficient significance to dub the season a failure.

Such is the attitude and the conviction of a large percentage of graduates and undergraduates. This year that sentiment, right or wrong, has its advantages for this particular Crimson team.

It is permitted one last opportunity to receive the parental blessing

A victory Saturday—and the fatted calf is I nfor rough handling; a defeat Saturday—and "our little Nell" born to disastrous end and riven with vain endeavor will face a long, bitter and unsympathetic winter of black despair.

The exceptional and truly inspired performance of the Yale team last Saturday, in which 11 men without a single substitution battled into submission a strongly favored Princeton team, must have taken its psyxicni toll.

Despite the Elis' proved stamina, despite their unquestioned courage that 60 consecutive minutes of hard play is a factor to be considered.

If Harvard applies the pressure at the opening kickoff and everendingly keeps that pressure applied; if those Crimson players can lift themselves mentally and steel themselves physically to the greatest effort of which they are capable, the after effects of last Saturday are bound to ten on those first stirring Elis.

The substitutes do not measure up to the regulars by a wide margin.

For Harvard, a successful conclusion to the season is possible.

This task demands their all.

It demands a distinctly superior brand of play than they have as yet shown.

It demands a perfection of execution and a compelling, overwhelming inspiration which transcends the level of play of which they had believed themselves capable.

It has been achieved before. It can be achieved again.

Among the highlights for which to look tomorrow are the face-to-face battle between Captain Francis Curun, left guard of Yale, and Captain Herman Gundlach, right guard of Harvard (there is a setting for drama); a punting duel between Stanley Fuller and Robert Riley; the splendid defensive play of James De Angelis; and a comparison of the play of Larry Kelley, Yale right end, with that of Shaun Kely, Harvard right end (which should prove for all time the much mooted question as to the desirability of that second "e").

YALE 'IRON MEN' FIT FOR BOWL DUEL; 55,000 TO SEE GAME

POND TO START HIS IRON MEN TOMORROW

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 23—Rumors of staleness of two or three Yale football players from overwork were denied today by the Yale coaches.

Trainer Frank Wandle said nobody had been out of condition except Quarterback Jerry Roscoe, who is recovering from a severe cold, and Kim Whitehead, whose knee injury received in the Princeton game still causes him to limp.

For the first time this week Head Coach Ducky Pond ordered a letdown, and the squad was merely to run through signal drills today. The Bowl was turned over to the Harvard team early this afternoon. The Yale eleven will attend movies tonight to distract their attention from tomorrow's strenuous contest.

Betting today stood two to one favoring Yale with practically no Harvard money visible.

Coach Pond said that he plans to start his iron man combination tomorrow but half a dozen substitutions are likely because of Yale's wearied condition.

Rainy conditions developed today and may continue tomorrow. A brisk sale of tickets at the offices of the Yale Athletic Association today indicated that about 55,000 would witness tomorrow's game.

Early arrivals of Yale alumni thronged New Haven hotels and the campus today.

In Yale tradition the Harvard game still ranks as the blue ribbon climax of the gridiron season and hundreds of graduates have crossed half the continent to witness the Elis battle with a historic rival tomorrow.

Tomorrow twenty two special trains, seven thousand automobiles and numerous excursion busses will bring 40,000 additional guests to the bowl.

Tonight Yale and Harvard glee clubs will unite in a joint concert.

Eleven Good Crimson Men and True Off for Bowl and Yale Adventure

Here they are, gentlemen in mufti, as they left the Back Bay station today for New Haven and the big game of the Harvard season. A victory in the Bowl tomorrow will take the sting out of past failures of the Crimson this season and make the year an eminently successful one. Yale was the underdog against unbeaten Princeton last Saturday and pulled the upset of the year in trouncing the Tiger. Yale is the 2 to 1 favorite for tomorrow. Perhaps the Crimson will pull an upset? (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

full 60 minutes. That happens where traditional rivals meet. It happens most often where Harvard and Yale meet.

It was years ago, when Charlie Buell and Eskie Clark and the great George Owen played for Harvard. They played Penn State one Saturday afternoon, and it came up dark. Lights like fire-flies, flared in the Stadium.

You don't remember Phil Coburn along with Owen and Hardwick and Brickley and the rest. He was just a second-string guard who, because everybody else was injured, was shoved in at fullback that afternoon.

He made good that day, and two or three weeks later, he made good against Yale. Past performances mean nothing.

HARVARD WILL MAKE YALE STEP PLENTY---LITTLE

By Lou Little
Head Coach, Columbia University
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Nov. 23—There are many who believe there is a strong possibility of Harvard's upsetting the Yale team in somewhat a similar manner as the Elis upset Fritz Crisler's unbeaten Tigers.

From psychological angles, Harvard is in a great position to hand Yale an unexpected jolt. There is no doubt that the game is going to be a much closer and evenly played contest than many expect.

It is quite true that Yale has made rapid strides in development since the early part of October, while Harvard has not won a major game since defeating Brown.

In justice to Harvard, it must be remembered that the coaches of this team had a very inexperienced group of players to develop and to bring them to major game ability in a very short space of time.

The playing of Eddie Casey's boys last Saturday, in their rout of New Hampshire, at least shows there is aggressive, offensive drive. Dartmouth, the week prior, had quite a difficult time to dispose of New Hampshire, by the margin of two touchdowns.

I do not look for Harvard to win, but the manner in which football has been played in the past couple of years, most any kind of a reversal is possible. Harvard is going to give Yale plenty of trouble.

The Army-Notre Dame game seems to be pretty much of a toss-up. It is rather difficult to say just how strong this Army team really is. They have defeated Yale and lost to Illinois.

In the Yale game they withdrew most of their key players and were content to win and at the same time develop reserve strength.

It was a wise bit of strategy on the part of Gar Davidson. Most coaches including myself, are a bit hesitant about substituting in a game that is evenly played for fear that the inexperience of the young player might prove disastrous.

You will find that when coaches have been forced to make these changes and send a youngster in the lineup he does, as a rule, a creditable job.

Coaches who are far-sighted enough to use substitutes and develop sufficient reserve strength generally find themselves pretty well fortified when the going gets rather hard and the veterans become a bit tired or self-satisfied.

Notre Dame has met outstanding opponents of major strength week after week. Their play has been rather spotty but when the attack started to move, they did so in a very impressive manner.

Their play in the last half of their game last Saturday with Northwestern, was outstanding and if they start the Army game where they left off with Northwestern and play the same calibre of football, the West Pointers will encounter a great deal of trouble.

There is not much difference to choose between the two. If there is a slight favorite, it is Notre Dame.

If Washington is able to dispose of Washington State it will give Stanford a clear title to the Pacific Coast championship. It is not going to be any easy matter for Jimmy Phelan's Huskies to get by the Cougars.

Stanford, of course, should win over California but it will not be as easy as most of us thought a couple of weeks ago. At that time California seemed to be having their troubles and Stanford was [illegible] rapidly each day.

In the past week the Bears have more or less found themselves. The manner in which they defeated [illegible] some difficulty for Stanford.

Southern California was very impressive in their defeat of Oregon State last week and will probably finish the season in a strong manner.

Morgan Is Sent to Minors

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 23—Eddie Morgan, Red Sox first sacker, has been shipped to Rochester in the International League in payment for third baseman Jim Brown.

The Sox bank on Babe Dahlgren, Coast recruit, to cover the position next year.

At the same time it was announced that Danny MacFayden, former Red Sox pitcher, had been sent to the Cincinnati Reds by the New York Yankees.

Cuthbert Stopped in Ring Comeback

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 23 (AP)—Freddie Miller of Cincinnati, recognized as world's featherweight champion by the National Boxing Association of the United States, knocked out Johnny Cuthbert, former British lightweight and featherweight champion, last night in the second round of a scheduled 12-rounder.

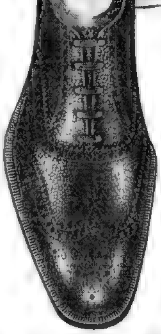

Cuthbert, trying to stage a comeback after his retirement early in the year, never had a chance.

Chalmers Elected Captain at Tech

Chalmers has been a popular trackster since entering Tech last year from Rollins College, running on the track team as a middle distance star with considerable amount of success.

'ALL' PICKERS SHOULD SEE PRO SCOUTS

By Damon Runyon
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Nov. 23. The real calibre of a college football player may be determined by the attention paid him by the scouts for the professional clubs.

You would be surprised how many players deemed absolutely sensational by the fans and some of the experts are disdained by the pro scouts as wholly useless for professional purposes.

The pro people have so far stuck pretty well to their policy of never approaching a college player while he is playing [illegible] but they naturally [illegible] a general survey [illegible] players [illegible] players are through with their college game.

The most desired college player in the United States today is a halfback who plays with a small college on the Atlantic Seaboard. He has had very little publicity and may not be picked on any "All-America" team.

The All-America pickers should consult the pro scouts if they want a real line on the great players.

Five-Year Plan of Quincy Coach Gets Final Fourth-Year Test

By Bill Connell

A five-year plan for football, designed by Coach Jimmy Le Cain of Quincy high, gets the concluding test of its fourth season tomorrow afternoon when Quincy plays at Brockton.

A few years ago Quincy high, although a big school in enrollment, played the smaller schools of the South Shore in most of its games. It had a mediocre record [illegible] opposition. There wasn't much home interest for the team [illegible] no field of its own.

There was a marked change after Le Cain took over the coaching. The schedule was improved, and team spirit began to rise.

The lack of a home or hard field proved a major handicap. Last year the school committee became interested and discussed ways and means for the erection of a stadium. The [illegible]

Catholic Rivals in Grid Game

dents. The eleven downed the [illegible] and Melrose, trailed New Bedford, beat Brookline, Hyde Park, Tufts Jayvees and Newton, in order, bowed to Haverhill, tied North Quincy and was edged by [illegible] a week back.

Yet lack of weight hasn't bothered the boys on defense, particularly in the middle of the line, where few gains have been made. Born guards are standouts, on offense, and defence. The line as a whole is very aggressive and well conditioned, and rarely needs a replacement.

Steve Friel, Harold Kapsis and Tom Monaco (160, 6-2, only a soph) are sub ends. Paul D'Olympio, George Cooke and Ero Sommontes, tackles. Tauno Pitkanen, and Ed Matheson, guards; Bernard Buckley, center; Ed Dunn, quarterback; Frank Purpura, Herb Lemon and Bill Widwell, halfbacks.

The coaching staff, which works without extra pay for the service, includes Ricoard Anketell, assistant principal at one of the grammar schools, who helps LeCain; Leland Anderson and Al Dean, J. V. toilers; and William Bowyer who does a great job teaching his 35 soph players the fundamentals.

EDDIE CASEY STARTS LAST TRIP

By Bill Grimes

Early this morning Eddie Casey started his final trip with a Harvard squad as head coach. Win, lose or draw, Eddie's stint at Cambridge [illegible]. After working at the [illegible] Bowl, the Harvard [illegible] squad will retire to [illegible] to spend the night before. For relaxation the Crimson squad will listen to one of Warner's [illegible] old [illegible] citizens relate [illegible] prowess as a gal amputer at [illegible].

Lieut. "Pat" Echols, director of publicity at West Point, is the proud father of two members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club, for "Pat," Jr., and Leha Echols have been duly inducted into the club. . . . Only four Penn players who have been regulars or first string substitutes will be lost by graduation in June. Penn is a perfect spot for a keen football mentor.

The Australian Golfing Federation would not sanction Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood playing exhibition matches "Down Under." Sarazen is now on his way to Japan. . . . George Corcoran, brother of the state handicapper and professional at Wes Ferrell's home [illegible] the state that the Red Sox pitcher and his brother Rick warm up daily and that Wes claims he will win 25 games for Manager Joe Cronin next season. . . . Fate's [illegible] season victory over the Wolverines was a break for Michigan State, for the Spartans have [illegible] 100,000 this season, an unusual figure in football at Ypsilanti.

Despite the fact that a newspaperman is now the executive secretary of the U. S. G. A., the golf scribes are up in arms over the side-tracking of Tom McMahon. Tom was the golf writers' pal, and the U. S. G. A. will live to rue the day that it relegated him to an advisory position . . . Before every Minnesota game, the substitutes rush out on the field and pat the first team on their respective backs . . . The Yale victory over Princeton brought out more cheers among the Big Ten customers than the defeat of Illinois by Wisconsin.

According to the Bethlehem Globe-Times, President Charle Russ Richards, who is confined to his campus residence convalescing from a heart attack, will be enabled to hear the play by play description of the Lehigh-Lafayette game. . . . Jack Tompkins, who is tending goal for the Detroit Olympics, played in the nets for the University of Michigan and also won his letter in baseball . . . Jack is doing pretty well by himself under Jack Adams for he is also coaching two amateur clubs and is the assistant auditor at the Olympia.

In the face of the strict ruling against Big Ten team participating in post season games, Governor White, Ohio, and Governor Olsen, Minnesota, are determined to have Ohio State and Minnesota play a charity game in Columbus, December 1 . . . If the chief executives put this game across it may pave the way for Conference elevens going to the Coast for Rose Bowl conflicts. Mickey Cochrane, Jr., 10-year-old son of the Detroit manager, is a chip off the old block. He is playing end for the Detroit Country Day School junior eleven. Mickey, Jr., wears No. 3 on his jersey, the same number alloted to his father by the Detroit Tigers.

Frank Hinkey, the Yale immortal, refereed a football game one night in old Madison Square Garden decked out in a tuxedo but quit after the Franklin, Pa., team ran over him, tuxedo and all . . . Jean Pusie, the Bruin defense man, is just one laugh after another. He is very popular with his teammates. Bibber McCoy, the well known wrestler, has invited Pusie to his home for Thanksgiving dinner . . . Les Lindberg, Illinois' great passer is known as "Baron" on the Illini campus, and not "Count" as the scribes have insisted.

One dollar and ten cents is "tops" for the Purdue-Indiana game. It's worth more money just to see Duane Purvis and Jim Carter, the Touchdown Twins, do their stuff . . . There must be something doing in the golf line for President Charles E. Mason of the M. G. A. and Frederick J. Corcoran were in a huddle yesterday . . . Norman Locking, who was brought up from the International League by Clem Loughlin, manager of the Chicago Blackhawks, scored 24 goals for Cleveland a year ago . . . "Pop" Warner, Temple, is anxious to give his great sophomore back, Dave Smukler, a chance to display his gridiron wares. If the Cherry and White gets through Villa Nova, the veteran coach would listen to a proposition to play on the Pacific Coast or in the South.

After 15 years of pro hockey, there are still many good games in Harry Oliver, as Manager Joe Simpson of the Amerks will soon discover. Like wine, Oliver has apparently improved with age . . . Coach Joe McKenney has started his drive to get his Eagles at top form for Holy Cross. If the players are content to follow Coach McKenney's instructions to the letter and not attempt to improve on them, they have an even chance of upsetting the Crusaders.

MANLY STICKS TO STANDBYS AT TUFTS

The Jumbo gridmen are going through the motions of a light scrimmage this afternoon as they put in their final moments of preparation for the clash with Massachusetts State at the Tufts Oval tomorrow afternoon.

This battle royal not only makes or breaks a second Tufts' all-victory season in seven years, but also determines who can claim the New England small college championship this year.

The Farmers have been gathering. Coach Lew Manly, highly pleased with his players but by no means optimistic about this conclusive game, is starting the identical line-up as in the last two games, with [illegible] several of the more promising substitutes.

SLED DOG KING AT MAT SHOW

Emil St. Godard, Manitoba's sled dog racing king, will attend the fourth annual mat carnival of the New England Sled Dog Club, scheduled for the Boston Garden on Thanksgiving night.

Jimmy Londos, Greek Adonis, clashes with Hans Kampfer, the German strong man in the main bout. Londos, title claimant, probably will meet with Ed Don George, the titleholder, if he defeats the German.

Hanley Picks Yale Over Harvard and Mass. State Over Tufts

By L. B. "Pat" Hanley
Head Coach at Boston University
(Written exclusively for and copyrighted by the Boston Evening American and the International News Service.)

A battle so deeply steeped in tradition that it must be rated as one of the nation's major sport classics takes place at New Haven tomorrow when Harvard and Yale stage their annual tussle.

Past performances mean little and favorites have been upset so many times that anything can be expected tomorrow. Looking at the game on the surface the immediate thought is a cinch for Yale; but, depending upon the way you look at it, other factors must be considered.

First we have a Harvard team that has dropped four major games in a row. Their morale was low and it looked as though the Crimson was through for the year. Suddenly the team clicked against New Hampshire. The result is restored confidence. The Crimson warriors now believe in themselves.

Considering the mental and physical side together with the emotional attitude of the players, it can easily be seen that a gruelling battle must be expected. "Ducky" Pond's boys must be given the edge on form.

I, however, cannot give the Eli a margin of more than one touchdown, and it would not surprise me greatly to see Harvard come through with a crashing upset.

Other New England attractions are the Tufts-Mass. State game and New Hampshire-St. Anselm's affair. Thanksgiving Day the annual classic between Brown and Colgate takes place at Providence, and the curtain then rings down on the Boston College-Holy Cross annual struggle a week from tomorrow.

The Tufts-Mass. State game should be a thriller, I look for a big upset here.

I honestly feel that the Staters can knock Tufts out of the undefeated group by a margin of a touchdown.

Up at Manchester, New Hampshire and St. Anselm's resume relationships after many years. It is a "natural," and a bitterly fought game should result.

The game is really a tossup, but I am giving the Wildcats a one touchdown advantage because of the fact that St. Anselm's cannot use its freshmen.

The Brown-Colgate game next Thursday has a decided Red Raider tinge. While Colgate may be overconfident and have a stiffer battle than it anticipates Andy Kerr's boys should still come through by at least three touchdowns. Brown, unfortunately seems through for this year. The game is just the last on the schedule.

Boston College and Holy Cross officially end the grid season here in New England next Saturday.

While a Boston College victory is not impossible, the chances are better than even that Holy Cross will win after plenty of opposition. The difference may be as low as one touchdown.

Mr. Boston Says:—

Brouillard in Title Bid Seeks Olin's Crown Foster Against Judges

By Jack Conway

LOU BROUILLARD will start a new title hunt tonight when he clashes with Al Gainor of New Haven in a 10-round bout at the New York Garden.

Brouillard at the age of 23 has won and lost two world boxing championships. He became welterweight king when he punched "Young" Jack Thompson into submission in a bitter 15-round go at the Boston Garden. In his first title defense contest, he was outscored by Jackie Fields over the ten-round route at Chicago.

Mr. Boston

The able Warren Brown of the Chicago Examiner wrote at the time that Brouillard would have beaten Fields easily in a 15-round contest.

Lou packed on weight and went gunning for the middleweight crown. He was recognized as middleweight boss following his knockout of Ben Jeby in New York. Brouillard had tuned up for the Jeby go by giving Jimmy McLarnin an artistic shellacking in New York.

Brouillard didn't hold his middleweight title for long, and was outscored by Vince Dundee in a tussle at the local Garden. Lou weakened himself making the middleweight notch of 160 pounds.

Seeks Bout With Olin

BROUILLARD recently went under the management of Johnny Buckley. The latter purchased Maurice Lemoine's contract with the Worcester boxer for $2500.

Buckley will have Brouillard challenge Bob Olin, new light heavyweight champion, if the former holder of two titles wins from Gainor. Brouillard has twice defeated Olin, and believes he can do so again.

Brouillard tells me he has engaged in 100 amateur bouts and 100 more battles in pro ranks. He does not carry a single mark from any of these ring engagements. He still carries the fire that goes with youth, and feels confident he will blast his way out front in the fistic parade.

New York is trying to revive interest in boxing with New England ring men. Sammy Fuller has created intense interest in boxing in New York as a result of his bout with "Young" Peter Jackson.

Edward C. Foster, president of the National Boxing Association, has joined with those persons who charge Fuller was handed a raw deal when the verdict went to Jackson.

Foster favors the abolition of the system which calls for two judges and a referee at boxing bouts. He believes better results would be obtained if the referee were made the sole judge in deciding the winner.

Foster was at the ringside as Fuller and Jackson battled. He says Fuller won easily. Sammy will return to New York for a tussle with Johnny Jadick of Philadelphia. Dick Finnegan, a former stable mate of Fuller's and now a court officer, outscored Jadick a few years ago.

If Fuller beats Jadick, he should be signed to meet Jackson again.

It is interesting to note that Fuller, Brouillard and the other boxers who are helping to revive interest in boxing are veterans of the ring wars. They are still able to stand off the rush of youngsters.

JOHNNY BUCKLEY — LOU BROUILLARD

Lou Brouillard, who returns to the ring wars tonight in the New York Garden, is one of the cauliflowered clan with a flying complex. Not for him the train or the boat or the auto in spanning distance. Rather he takes to the air. GIANTS' LEADER SHOCKED BY REFUSAL

By Universal Service

L[illegible], Ky., Nov 23—Freddie L[illegible] outfielder, infielder and [illegible] wonder, goes back to C[illegible] and the home of his fa[illegible].

Larry French left hand pitcher also g[illegible] to Chicago.

M[illegible] e Guy Bush, the tragedian w[illegible] the burnsides, goes to Pittsburgh. Accompanying him are Jim Weaver pitcher, and Babe Herman outfielder.

These in brevity, were the details of the deal between Pittsburgh and Chicago that took the play [illegible] from all else at the annual [illegible] meetings, the general understanding being that all [illegible] were pleased.

A[illegible] that is except Bill Terry manager of the New York Giants. W[illegible] was positively shocked.

Twenty minutes before the Pittsburgh-Chicago deal was announced they offered to bet a hat that Lindstrom would not go to Chicago.

LINDY TO PLAY THIRD

Terry had not been talking merely to hear his teeth rattle.

He actually had offered Carl Hubbell, his ace left-hander, to the Pittsburgh club for French and Lindstrom and felt he had reason to be confident the offer would be taken up.

But Manager Pie Traynor, of Pittsburgh, simply turned on his heel and did business with the other people. It was surprising to more people than Terry that a man like Hubbell didn't offer sufficient temptation in the way of bait.

Lindstrom, who not only returns to his home town but also h[illegible] original position, third base, hit only 288 last season. French won only 12 while losing 18 games for the Pirates.

They obviously had outlasted their welcome in Pittsburgh, and that went, too, for Bush and Herman in Chicago.

PERCENTAGE PLAYERS

Bush who previously had been looked upon as one of the ranking right hand pitchers of baseball won 18 games and lost 10 in 1934 [illegible] his unwillingness to face the star pitchers of other clubs irked the Chicago officials. So did Herman's retirement from the lineup in the closing weeks of the race.

Once a hitter who almost won the batting championship, Herman finished with an average of .304. The claim was that he didn't play in the late weeks of the season because he wanted to finish higher than .300.

Outside of this, all was quiet along the lobby front today, except for a few inconsequential player transfers and the fact that the International League and the American Association apparently came to the end of a beautiful friendship.

In consequence of this, there will be no "little world series" in 1935 unless the American Association is able to go through with its plan to have the Pacific Coast League play it in a post-season event.

Joe Carr Heeds Redskin Protest

New York, Nov 23 (INS)—Joe Carr, president of the National Professional Football League, revealed today that as a result of the protest by the Boston Redskins against the loan of Warren Heller, Pittsburgh back, to the New York Giants to fill the place of Harry Newman, injured quarterback, he will take a telegraphic vote of the club owners to decide the matter.

Yavner "Y" Captain

Meyer Yavner, holder of the National Y. M. C. A. running broad jump record, has been elected captain of the Boston Y. M. C. A track team for the season of 1934 35.

BROUILLARD MEETS GAINER

By International News Service

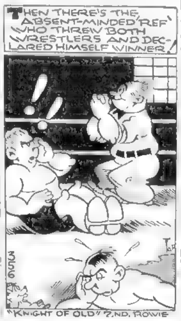

New York, Nov 22 (INS) Lou Brouillard will face Al Gainer a rib-racking Negro, in a ten-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

No title is attached to the shindig, nor is there a challenger runup bit of importance about the fray. Is is just a fight, and fight it should be, because Mister Gainer is a hitter from Rittsville, as is the left-handed Mister Brouillard.

Time was when Brouillard was a champion, twice indeed, he having won the welter and middleweight crowns. Because of his desire to be a fighting champion he didn't go far as king in either division. Faster and cleverer boys took his titles, Jackie Fields winning the first and Vince Dundee the middleweight crown.

Brouillard's sole aim in life right now is to fight Bob Olin, newly crowned light heavyweight king. Three titles are Brouillard's aim and, if he defeats the hard hitting Negro tonight, will call upon King Olin for a showdown.

'Bama Rates First Shot at Rose Bowl Game, Says Bill Corum

By Bill Corum

New York, Nov. 23.

Mr. Claude E. Thornhill, Stanford University, Stanford, Cal.:

My Dear "Tiny"—This is the first time I've written you since early October. At that time I suggested that we had tigers, panthers and lions from which you could take your pick as Rose Bowl opponent this year. Or if you were fed up on the animal kingdom that we always had a team called Colgate.

Back here it is taken for granted (this is written on the eve of the California game) that your Red Indians from Palo Alto will represent the West in the Annual New Year's Day classic against [illegible]

[illegible]

Now this is not a sales talk but just a friendly letter.

The chances are that the Pacific Coast Conference will go to Alabama in search of a rival for Stanford this trip—Minnesota continuing unavailable—and [illegible] that selec[illegible]

THEY SAY HOWELL IS GOOD

[illegible] Alabama [illegible] enough [illegible] those rebels [illegible] enough for me [illegible] enough to give [illegible] a battle.

[illegible] Tuscaloosa [illegible] as good as [illegible] those who are saying that ever saw The Gipper, that's good enough for me, too.

Indeed, if "Dixie" can go along with your Mr. Grayson, "Tiny," he'll do for the Rose Bowl or the [illegible] Bowl or [illegible]

[illegible]

Colgate has its hardest game of [illegible] with Syracuse tomorrow [illegible] without its backfield ace—a chap you may [illegible] Pitt has [illegible] its two best linesmen.

So even if they lose to a [illegible] outfit that outweighs them ten pounds to the man right through the line and backfield, I don't think anybody can reasonably claim that the Rose Bowl rivals of last New Year's Day weren't pretty fair football teams, eh, Tiny? Between them to date they have lost just one bad game.

PITT ALWAYS STRONG

An old Pitt Panther yourself you likely know better than I do that the gloomy doctor of Schenley Park (Jock Sutherland) [illegible] me up with another one of those "whooshers" for which Pitt is famous.

The truth about the gloomy doctor is that he not only has a good team this year, but that he has a good team every year.

Football players must pop up out of those mines and steel mills and pickle factories and rye distillers around Pittsburgh like mushrooms in the wood patch on a damp morning.

The gloomy doctor, like little Andy Kerr and Fritz Crisler, made only one mistake this fall—his team lost one game.

I'm not going to point out that they had Minnesota's mauling Norsemen straighter than a worn fiddle string to lick 'em.

They always pay off on the scoreboard [illegible] my seat in the press box and when you [illegible] that's just [illegible] potato.

[illegible] disgrace to [illegible] game or any [illegible] should be made over losing [illegible] the modern gridiron [illegible] is like tight wire walking and flying an airplane upside down in that the second guess doesn't count.

Which was the way I felt about Stanford New Year's Day. On that particular day and date or whatever year of our Lord it was [illegible] just got out-nodded.

And that's exactly what happened to what this bureau thought was going to be an unbeaten [illegible] Princeton outfit a week ago [illegible]

COLGATE ENTERTAINING

[illegible] vanishing team [illegible] on that particular sunny afternoon what it took to [illegible] smooth and class.

But into each life some rain must fall, Tiny, and don't those of us who were at Pasadena as the old year bowed out know it.

So as Princeton can do is to start over. Which it will make no mistake. There's football class and power there to burn.

As for Colgate, you couldn't possibly pick a more entertaining and flashy team to watch in [illegible] country. Kerr's raiders from [illegible] Chenango have everything, [illegible] their fair share of straight away power.

Still the South [illegible] rates first consideration this year, and nobody can or wants to get behind the fact that Alabama [illegible] stands.

Good luck tomorrow, Tiny, and the best wishes of the boys at Flower Field to Grayson, Hamilton, Moscrip and the gang.

Let's hope we'll be seeing you again soon.

Sincerely,
Rose Bowl [illegible]

EVERETT GAME WITH SALEM FEATURES

By Bill Connell

Phil Broderick takes his Salem Witches to Everett and Somerville goes to Waltham as the best Saturday finale of school football in the past decade goes on, tomorrow afternoon.

Malden at Haverhill, Quincy at Brockton, Chelsea at Peabody and a few other games of lesser note are on the card. Early season forms ruled the program of tomorrow into being when usually a full day for the school fans is on.

The Everett-Salem affair originally was billed for Salem but was shifted. The Everett site gives Greater Boston fans a chance to watch one of the most colorful games of the year without long distance travel.

MALDEN AT HAVERHILL

Both Everett and Salem have had very successful seasons. Each lost one game, Everett to Manchester Central and Salem to Lawrence. Salem's prospects were bleak at the start of the year but hard work by Broderick and Matty Donovan smoothed the rough edges.

The Salem players have developed rapidly with the exception of halfback Fernie Gibbons, who hasn't shown much since the early part of the season, but there are other good backs at Salem, including Johnny Rubin, and the line is excellent.

Everett may suffer a letdown after a scoreless tie with Malden, but it's likely that the team will hold its powerful stride to make the Salem game as even money wager.

Somerville at Waltham is another good game. Waltham lacked punch last week as it edged Newton, but will be back in high gear tomorrow. Somerville [illegible] Halfback Frank Davis [illegible] injury but has sufficient power to force Waltham.

Malden at Haverhill ranks with the best games. Haverhill has more backfield strength than Malden with its Julius Akstin, Domenic [illegible] and Luigi Catifo. The Haverhill line is little back of the great Malden frontier. A terrific schedule has taken its toll at Malden and the team faces a difficult session.

CATHEDRAL VS. IMMACULATE

Chelsea goes to Peabody, where the home team will be on the short end of the odds. Quincy likewise is underdog as it travels to Brockton, yet Quincy is supremely confident and intends to surprise Brockton.

In the sparkling Catholic League race Cathedral is at Immaculate in Revere, St. Charles goes to St. Clement's in Somerville, and St. Mary's is at Mission in Roxbury.

Lawrence will win its 24th straight, for it plays host to little Amesbury. A few other games fill out the list, for most of the noted teams are resting up in preparation for Thanksgiving.

PUBLIC WORKS SPENDING IS DEBATED

By HUGH F. BRADSHAW

[illegible]

John Maynard Keynes

[illegible]

Granting that business and industry are reviving somewhat, but slowly, the matter of public expenditures this winter is of utmost importance because of its direct effect on trade. With four important economic and political seers close to the White House in open disagreement there is reason for caution. In the case of Mr. Moley particularly we think we read a conservative note that all but asks for a review of Federal spending habits. The editor of Today expresses the opinion that the necessity of a revival of private employment is the solution. His way at least will encourage capital to try its hand at restoring prosperity although it might be slower.

A number of the sideline bulls have found the refusal of the industrials to react too much for their nerves and as a consequence they have entered the market. At this particular point any show of strength by the rails would practically force a bull attitude on the part of all traders taking an active part in the market. They would favor the steels and rails along with selected specialties in taking their initial positions. But it is the lately backward groups that would offer the best opportunities.

There seems to be some debate on the matter of private stimulation of home building and government subsidies to aid this type of construction. At this writing it does not seem that a building program can miss fire. Someone will do the financing and the buyer of construction and building shares in here need not concern himself with who. The important thing from the standpoint of a trader in such shares is that positive steps are under way to stimulate the industry in which he is committed.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE HIGHER

Prices were higher in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Trading was light.

Issues up 1 or more included Atchison, American Telephone, Employers Group and U. S. Smelting. Edison, Pennsylvania Railroad, Pond Creek Pocahontas and United Fruit improved fractionally.

New England Telephone, a weak spot, lost a major fraction, and United Shoe was easy.

SHARES SCORE GAINS IN NEW ADVANCE

New York, Nov. 23—After backing and filling in a narrow range for more than a week the stock market broke out on the upside today with all sections of the list joining in the upturn.

Trading picked up substantially as the advance gained momentum and at one time the ticker was more than a minute behind the market.

Railroad shares, heretofore the laggards, gave the cue for the advance shortly before the noon hour as Union Pacific and Atchison began to appear on the tape more frequently and quickly scored gains running to 3 points. Other rails including Lackawanna, New York Central, Southern and Southern Pacific quickly joined in and gained from fractions to more than a point.

LED BY FAVORITES

Industrial issues were by far the best performers throughout the session. Under the leadership of the old-time favorites including United States Steel, American Can, Bethlehem and others of like calibre the group advanced from 1 to 2 points to reach new high levels on the recovery movement.

Utilities were consistently firm through the day, but were neglected during the height of the activity but gave a good account of themselves compared with their recent activity on the downside.

Individual features included such volatile preformers as Air Reduction and Allied Chemical both of which advanced more than three points.

Farm implement shares were strong with Deere common and preferred the features, although J. I. Case and International Harvester scored moderate gains. Mail order stocks were buoyant in sympathy.

General Motors was taken in large blocks for a gain of more than a point as was Chrysler. Auburn and other auto shares did comparatively little.

Despite the general strength the gold mining shares did little and at one time appeared on the verge of a break. Building stocks were strong as were oils and specialties. Liquor shares enjoyed a good rally during the fourth hour when National Distillers, United States Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol jumped from 1 to 2 points.

PRICE RUMORS

The carloadings figures for the week ended November 17 disclosed about a seasonal decline of 10,407 cars. Under the previous week the total of 584,525 was 11,902 ahead of the corresponding 1932 week and 18,183 below the 1933 week.

The activity in the tobaccos was said to have been based partly on rumors that the larger companies were considering advancing the prices of cigarettes and other products.

Market opinions generally were of the cautiously bullish type. While many brokers were dubious about the market, as a whole, they pointed out that special issues may continue in demand and help the rest of the list to keep on a fairly even keel.

Odd-lot buying was said to have picked up noticeably this week, with some of the recently neglected pivotal stocks favored by the small trader and investor. Some expansion of foreign participation was also reported. Buying from abroad was understood to have been in selected rails and utilities.

Banking circles continued to watch with mixed feelings the rapid growth of America's gold holdings. The Commerce Department announced that, in the week ended Nov. 16, gold imports totaled $39,010,449 against $7,599,553 in the previous week. In addition, silver imports amounted to $5,050,207 compared with $4,570,084 the week before.

Dollar Higher at Close in London

London, Nov. 23 (AP) — The United States dollar gained ⅛ cent to the pound today, closing at 4.99 3-16 to the pound as compared with yesterday's final figure of 4.99 7-16. The opening was at 4.99¾.

The French franc closed at 75.75 to the pound as compared to yesterday's close of 75.82.

BAKER DOES HIS BIT ON RADIO TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

It's going to be fun tonight, watching the jolly jester named Baker bring his half-hour to the WBZ-WBZA microphones for all America to hear, beginning at 9:30 p. m. Stage duty in person occupies Phil in these parts at present, so that his commercially sponsored "mike" setting must originate here.

Then too, it is going to be good seeing and greeting Mabel Albertson again. Mabel is in my opinion, one of the most gifted of all broadcasting ladies. Her dialect talent and flair for impersonation isn't excelled anywhere in the vast sound sanctum firmament of stars. I wonder if she will remember doing a truly great job for me at WBZ-WBZA about three years ago.

Mabel Albertson

It was when the part of Pola Negri in a picture called "A Woman Commands" was so masterfully handled by the same Mabel Albertson, assuming a Russian dialect I haven't heard equaled before or since. Mabel sang as well. In fact the first time the tune "Paradise" went over the ether out of any microphone, it was turned in by the beauteous blonde of whom I am writing. Indeed it will be pleasant to see Mabel again, just as it is to note the marked success her efforts have been accorded in radioland.

RUBY AND HUBBY

Mr. and Mrs Jolson, or Al and his Ruby Keeler, as Hollywood knows the professional pair, join Louella Parsons, Dick Powell and Ted Fiorito orchestra for the weekly "Hollywood Hotel" hour of broadcasting (WNAC) tonight, between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m.

It is expected that Ruby Keeler, who co-starred with Dick Powell in the new "Flirtation Waltz" film, will present a scene or two from the picture, also to be attended by the elite of the movie realm, the occasion being one of those ceremonious openings for which the city of clicking cameras is so famous. It is the first time Al and Ruby have appeared together in a radio program.

SELECTED SOLOS

Among the solos to be sung by Jessica Dragonette while the weekly concert (WEEI) come 8 o'clock this evening, are the classic "Elegie" by Massenet and Cadman's romantic "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" with Rosario Bourdon and his music men offering "The Petite Waltz" by Herbert and the "Triumphal March" of Grieg.

HALF HOUR HIGHLIGHT

Operatic arias, by Raffaele Martino orchestra, hold the 8:30 to 9 o'clock spotlight through WAAB and Yankee Network outlets this evening. Edith Talbot, soprano and Guiseppe Gozzi, baritone, contribute the vocalizing.

* * *

On the same wave (WAAB) and as an 8:15 to 8:30 airing, Charles W. Brown, professor of Geology at Brown University, speaks on the Chemical Society quarter hour, outlining the minerals in the earth and their relation to the future and prosperity of America.

2nd Radio Show by Scott Furriers

Scott Furriers will conduct the second in their radio series of old-fashioned amateur nights in the Plymouth Theater, next Sunday night. Stage and radio stars will attend the performances.

Auditions for those anxious to get a chance to go on the air will take place from 7:45 to 10 p. m., the hour of the Scott broadcast. Each contestant will be allowed a minute and a half.

As a surprise feature, the winner of last Sunday's broadcast by popular vote will be announced over the air next Sunday.

President's speech, promising cheap power, but they should meditate on his statement to one Southern city:

"Since you started using TVA power last March, your consumption for residential purposes has risen from 41,000 kilowatts to 89,000 kilowatts, an increase of 126 per cent."

Twice as great consumption with half as much profit might prove safer, more permanent, than the present arrangement, and just as profitable. New York's elevated railroad never made "real money" until the fare was cut from ten to five cents. Then the crowd rode.

Think of it! A free Rental Bureau right in the heart of the downtown shopping center. R. H. White Co., in co-operation with the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, has established this unique service. You are invited to visit here with Barbara Holmes at any time.

You Hear Him on the Radio

Richard Crooks . . . Who used to ride the air lanes . . . But who now lets his voice do it . . . As the Metropolitan tenor . . . Graduated to the microphone.

Crooks was born in Trenton, N. J. . . . Back 33 years ago . . . And was singing at eight . . . In a church choir . . . As a clear soprano . . . Under Sydney Bourne . . . Choirmaster . . . Who trained him for four years . . . And then turned him over to a New York church . . . After he had shared honors . . . In a New Jersey music festival . . . With Mme. Schumann-Heink . . . Before an audience of 14,000.

He was a steady patron of the Metropolitan Opera . . . As a boy . . . Using all his spare money for opera tickets . . . Until the war came . . . And he fibbed about his age . . . And entered the service . . . Being trained by Clarence Chamberlain . . . Until his age was discovered . . . And he was discharged . . . Only to continue private training . . . And to secure an air mail job . . . Until he found romance . . . And found he needed more money to get married . . . And left the mail planes . . . To take an insurance company job.

His bride was a high school chum . . . Mildred Pine . . . And he married her at 21 . . . And discovered that she wished him to continue voice training . . . So he began studying summers in Germany . . . Singing a concert there in 1922 . . . And being offered a contract . . .

RICHARD CROOKS

Which led to a New York engagement . . . In "Siegfried" . . . With the New York Symphony . . . Under Walter Damrosch . . . And Crooks was adjudged an operatic find . . . And finally was accepted into the Metropolitan fold . . . From which he came into radio.

Crippled Girl Asks Piano, Others Seek Clothing

A crippled girl of 17 whose activities are limited because of physical disablements possesses artistic leanings which have long gone unanswered for lack of funds.

Her legs are lifeless, but she has been left with the use of her hands. And she would like a piano.

COAT WANTED

A South Boston woman asks for a coat size 42.

A child of 14 writes in pleading for a mattress for her mother.

One young mother says she cannot take her infant out because she hasn't a carriage. Nor has she a coat for herself. She wears size 50.

A Roxbury resident appeals for clothing for boys of 12, 11 and 8.

We have a request from a needy party for apparel for a girl of 8, and boys of 5 and 11. The writer also says she needs bed clothing badly.

SHOES NEEDED

A letter from South Boston asks for man's shoes size 8 and trousers 31-32.

One woman will swap clothing for a boy of 2 or 3 and a woman's coat size 42 for a parlor stove and shirts size 12.

Please designate size when asking for or giving clothing. Do not bring articles into the office of the Boston Evening American.

Best Bets Tonight

7:15 P. M. — WBZ—Plantation Echoes, Willard Robison's Orchestra and Mildred Bailey, blues singer.

8:00 P. M.—WEEI—Jessica Dragonette, songs; Grantland Rice, sports talk; quartet piano duo and orchestra.

PILOT JOHN SHOBE — HAZEL M. KEENE

When King Baby starts yelling for his dinner the world at large must pay attention. So this airplane, piloted by John Shobe, above, is being pressed into service to rush a consignment of mother's milk from Boston to Hartford, Ct. A youngster in the Hartford hospital was waiting. An anxious dad furnished the transportation. And the Directory for Mother's Milk, Boston, was the agency which came to the rescue. Hazel M. Keene of the Directory is delivering the milk to Pilot Shobe. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

SANTASON DUE ON THURSDAY

His pack laden with quintuplet doll-babies, free-wheeling toy automobiles and other Christmas trinkets for modern youngsters, Santason will arrive in Boston at 11 o'clock Thanksgiving morning, according to information contained in dispatches from Santaland, North Pole today.

At Nome, Alaska, Santason will exchange his reindeer team for the more modern airplane, by which mode of transportation he will continue the rest of his journey via Fairbanks, Alaska; Edmonton, Alberta; Cleveland, O., and then Boston.

Higginson to Get Marriage License

East Providence, R. I., Nov. 23—Henry L. Higginson of Boston and Lincoln, Mass., is expected to call at the town clerk's office here today with his bride-to-be, Mrs. Dorothy Heddon Fulton of Cambridge.

LIGHT WORKERS REMAIN FIRM

Providence, Nov. 23—Unless the maintenance workers of the Narragansett Electric Company here are satisfied with the outcome of the meeting between members of their union and officials of the company Tuesday they will strike.

James E. Toher, spokesman for the Brotherhood of Utility Employes of America, said that the members voted overwhelmingly to strike unless their demands are granted.

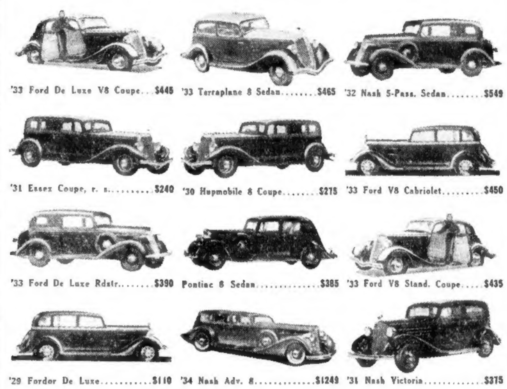

The union will give the public proper notice before a walkout is called, Toher said. The workers are asking for wage increases, better working conditions and the establishment of seniority rights.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

For Court Reform

Boston Bar Action Good

THE Boston Bar Association is to be congratulated on evolving any feasible plan for clearing up long-standing congestion in our courts.

A special committee of the association, engaged in study since last May, plans to recommend creation of an appellate division of the Massachusetts Superior Court.

Such a division, lawyers believe, would not only act as a clearing house for appeals from Superior Court decisions but also relieve the Supreme Judicial Court of much work.

To effect this proposed reform, action by the Legislature would be necessary.

Secretary Robert H. Hopkins of the special committee states that no complaints of corruption "on the bench" are before the committee.

THIS reassurance, while pleasing, is not surprising.

The Bar Association should, however, for its own protection as well as for the welfare of the general public, look into what is going on "off the bench."

Punishing a little shyster lawyer now and then and letting the big shyster lawyers "get away with it" only reflects on the honest members of the bar.

These honest members would be glad to see a real clean-up.

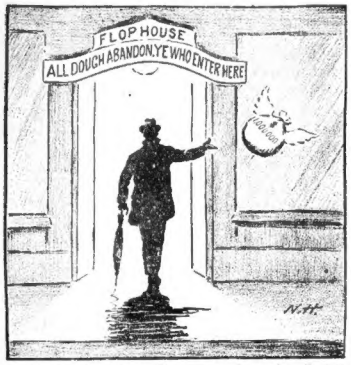

It cannot be forever delayed.

If the Boston Bar Association can devise ways and means for speeding up justice in both the criminal and the civil courts, it will be remedying a situation that has long worried able judges and other public leaders.

Our taxpayers are entitled to speedy justice. And speedy justice in turn makes for suppression of crime.

A Flophouse Millionaire

Is He Crazy? Think It Over

GENTLEMEN with a million dollars seldom give all of it away, but, at last, one has been found who has done just that.

A. E. O. Munsell, 39-year-old Harvard graduate, was discovered by a reporter in the government shelter for transients at 109 West 54th street, New York, that is, in a "flophouse."

His grandfather, a former New York financier, left him the million.

Mr. Munsell gave half of it to his wife and the other half to needy persons.

It did not take long, he said, to dispose of the money.

A religious fanatic? A lunatic?

Mr. Munsell denies any religious motive in thus parting with his wealth, and he has been certified "mentally and emotionally stable" by a clinic at Johns Hopkins.

He explains that he merely wanted to help others and, incidentally, escape a mere rich man's life.

He expects to get a job soon and go to work.

All of which may sound insane to most of us, busily engaged in keeping body and soul together, and wishing that we had a million dollars of our own.

But the world could do with a little more of that kind of "insanity."

It is certainly no worse than the "sanity" which greedily hangs on to every cent that can be piled up, that takes no thought of the poverty and suffering of others and that has helped to make so much of modern life the hectic experience that it is.

Helping Santa Claus

ERA Men and Legion Post

Recent mention of the activities of Newton's fire-fighters as spending spare time in repairing broken toys to please the children Christmas has aroused others to similar activity.

But Braintree Post, American Legion, has been carrying on this work for some time. And in an odd way.

The Legion men leave barrels, suitably placarded, at the various food stores.

Those with broken or paintless toys deposit them in the barrels. Volunteer Legion workers do the rest. And many a child is made happy.

In Waltham ERA workers are busy reconditioning toys for the nearing Yuletide.

Why leave toys lying idle that will help make little needy ones happy? And, when you give, why not heap in a few new ones for good measure?

Pinch Hitting for Cupid

A New Job for Police

Dan Cupid's aim was getting so poor down in Chihuahua City in old Mexico that the policemen took over his job.

Couples found conversing in parks or public places after ten o'clock at night are led—by force if necessary—to the Civil Registrar's office, where the knot it tied.

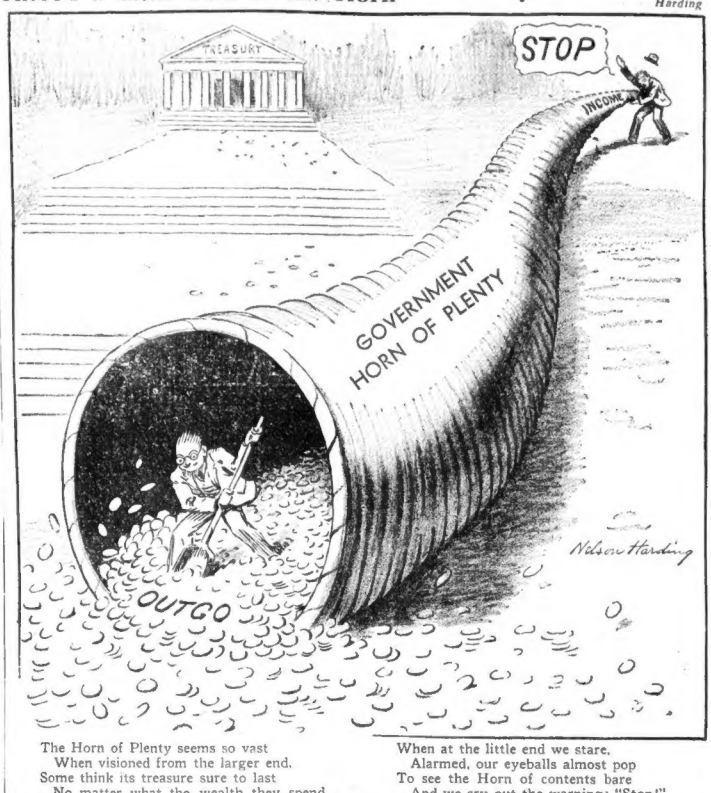

Perhaps a pre-marital nightstick isn't such bad training for a post-marital rolling-pin.

There's a Little End of the Horn

By Nelson Harding

The Horn of Plenty seems so vast
When visioned from the larger end.
Some think its treasure sure to last
No matter what the wealth they spend.

When at the little end we stare,
Alarmed, our eyeballs almost pop
To see the Horn of contents bare
And we cry out the warning: "Stop!"

Listen, World

By Elsie Robinson

GO STREAMLINE!

You'd like to get ahead. You envy people who do . . . people who, starting from nothing, reach the dazzling heights of only your life were like that! But, of course, it can't be. For you never have the breaks.

No matter how hard you work, something or somebody's always holding you back. So here you are—at 30 or 40 or 50—just about where you started.

Dismal outlook isn't it? And it will keep right on being dismal as long as you continue to place the blame where you're placing it now—on the outside world—on other people.

Elsie Robinson

FORGET ALL THAT

But suppose, just for once, you forget all that and trace your trouble to its source. Where's that? IN YOURSELF.

What's the reason you can't get ahead? YOU'RE the reason. Some BIND in your own character. Some troublesome little trait, some pesty prejudice holds you back.

Ever see one of the early automobiles—those old hearses that crawled along at ten miles an hour? What delayed them? Their own gadgets.

They were covered with countless do-dads and kickshaws, all of which bucked the wind, consumed energy and slowed up action. Every year the manufacturers have been eliminating some of those gadgets. Eliminating angles—smoothing out the lines.

Now look at the 1935 models! No more do-funnies. Everything simplified—clear, clean, sleek and swift as sunshine. Nothing to stop them any more. BECAUSE THEY'VE GONE STREAMLINE.

MINDS LIKE THAT

Minds are like that. Some of 'em can do ten miles an hour—rattling and wheezing every inch of the way. Some do a hundred with never a squeak.

Where's the difficulty? Outside conditions? No—for the 100-mile mind often has to buck as bad traffic, make as difficult shifts, as the 10-mile mind. The difficulty's in the model—in the mind itself.

Take yourself for instance . . . No—let's take me. I'll be Horrible Example No. 1 this time. I, too, want action. And I've got the makings. BUT—there's a bind in MY machinery. Trouble with me is, I'm always rarin' to go—and hate to stop, look and listen.

So—I'm always leaping along, burning up the road beneath me, AND THEN HAVING TO GO BACK AND PICK UP THE WRECKAGE.

MAYBE IT'S CONCEIT

If I'd take things a little slower at first . . . If I'd get rid of that tendency to recklessness . . . my ultimate performance would be a wow. But I have to waste half my energy doing things over.

Now it's YOUR turn. What's your bind? Cowardice, maybe. Hate to take chances—hate to make changes. Only, of course, you don't call it by such a crude name as cowardice. CAUTION—that's your name for it.

Nice name. Makes you feel proud of being that way. Gives you a chance to sneer at reckless guys like me. So you go on being "cautious"—and wondering why you never get ahead.

Or maybe, it's conceit. You don't like that either. You say you're "sensitive." Another swell little—an alibi. People can openly despise a conceited person, but they feel they should be nice to a sensitive person—coddle and protect them—refrain from criticizing them.

So, by being sensitive, you escape a lot of the rough stuff. But you also shut yourself out of the big, jostling parade. Then you think they should have waited for you—and then you wonder why the world's such a cruel place.

Cowardice. Conceit. Laziness. Bad temper. Jealousy. Love of a good time. Desire for comfort. They're all binds—like the useless gadgets on the old automobiles, that kept them crawling at ten miles an hour.

IF YOU WANT TO GO AHEAD, GO STREAMLINE!

Stop whining about the Status Quo—stop blaming the Other Fellow. Get busy and do a job on yourself.

Cut out the fuss-budget technique—the pernickety prejudices—the rusty old suspicions—the ga-ga sentimentality—the cockeyed ideas that have gummed up your action. Get simple! Get modern! GO STREAMLINE!

Home as Background

By Winifred Black

"No," said the rather more than clever woman, "No, Pink isn't the least little bit like me.

"Pink believes in home and mother, if you get what I mean.

Winifred Black

"She's only 21, and she's a university girl, as you know, but she believes that woman's place is in the home. She really believes it, no fooling, and to me home is all right as a background, but I rather like to keep it a little far back, if you see what I mean.

"I love to entertain and have dinners and things at home, but I want company at the table, and I like to get back home after a good long trip, and just look around to think where I'll go next.

"I'm a good housekeeper, if I do say it myself.

"There are never any cigarette ashes on my living room tables—not so you could notice it, and I check up on the linen myself, and order the meals and see that they are correctly served.

"I know where every pin is in every pin cushion in the house and no cook can hold out on me and get away with it.

"I have the curtains cleaned and the rugs, too, at a little more than on time, and nobody ever saw a fork on my table that tasted just a wee bit like soap suds.

"I believe in efficiency.

"If I'm going to a party I want to wear the best party dress in town and I'll shop my head off till I find it and when I do find it I'll take care of it, and see that it's always in the very best condition.

"My gardener does the work he's paid to do—I see to that, and if you can find a speck of dust on my car—you win first prize.

"My mother was a terrible housekeeper.

"Her servants got the best of her every day in the week. We had dinner when the cook felt like serving dinner—maybe at six, maybe at seven, maybe quarter of eight, and the soup was never really quite hot enough.

"She never knew whether she had any money in the bank or not, and we girls all grew up competent, energetic and every one of us a top notch housekeeper, and every one of us can write checks and keep a bank account straight.

THE COZY COTTAGE

"I suppose that's the way with Pink.

"She's all the things I am not.

"She's easy going, not too ambitious, not at all fussy about money, and the one thing she likes is home life.

"She'd rather sit down in front of the fire with a good book and turn on the radio and read than to go to the smartest party in the world.

"Parties bore her to tears, she says, and I believe she really means it.

"I think she actually wants what they call a cozy cottage and a nest of youngsters. She's pretty and attractive so she'll probably get what she wants. I suppose she'll really enjoy them when she does get them.

"But as for me"—the clever woman made a gesture which signified despair.

"And then you talk to me about heredity," said the clever woman who has a way with her.

Rather interesting situation, don't you think?

MEMORIES

The things that we'll remember in the sunset of our lives
Are trumpet vines which used to grow each summer by the door;
For little of the splendor strength has gathered long survives.
'Tis only trivial pleasures that the memory holds in store.

When age has come upon us and we're done with strife and stress,
We'll both recall the pretty things which once the children said.
And we shall find among the things which brought us happiness
The four o'clocks which blossomed on the paths we used to tread.

Though youth must have its triumphs and seems mad for wealth and fame,
The memory stays indifferent to the stirring things men do,
And all the old remember and would eagerly reclaim
Are the fleeting bits of gladness which in days gone by they knew.

Let histories tell men's daring, all the memory holds for long
Are happy little incidents which filled the fleeting hours:
The mornings gay with laughter and the evenings sweet with song,
The old-time friends and neighbors and the garden gay with flowers.

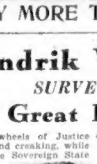

Hendrik Van Loon

SURVEYS ERA

Of Great Indignation

Slowly the wheels of Justice are groaning and creaking, while the case of the Sovereign State of Illinois vs. Samuel Insull is dragging its ponderous bulk through the court-rooms of Cook county.

I wonder how many people are still following the fetails of this famous case? Most of us can follow an argument when it has to do with ten or a hundred dollars.

Hendrik Van Loon

When the amount in dispute reaches the thousand dollar limit, we begin to feel dizzy. When the defendant and the district attorney begin to juggle with tens of millions, we say "Tell it to Einstein," and turn on the radio.

MEASURES OF TIME

For a million dollars is something vague and intangible, like the light years beloved of the astronomers. "Last year" or "next year" are expressions which mean something to us. Once past the age of fifty "thirty years ago" means the time when we got our first job at seven dollars a week. A century ago means something connected with the American Revolution, George Washington and Betsy Ross.

And a thousand years ago, as we all know, people lived uncomfortably in the abysmal ignorance of the Dark Ages. After that, we catch an occasional glimpse of the Greeks and the Babylonians and the author of King David's Psalms and the builders of the Pyramids, who fought and wrote and built and died three or four or five thousand years ago.

But Heaven help us when we wander into an astronomical observatory and are told that the clusters of stars we are contemplating are only 200,000 light years removed from our own speck of dust.

For a light year is the distance travelled by light in the course of a year, or six million million miles, and the Milky Way is therefore 200,000 times 6,000,000,000,000 miles away from us.

Alas and alack! The average human brain cannot follow such figures.

The same holds true for the operations of Mr. Samuel Insull and his faithful assistants. The deficit they left behind when they finally closed the books upon their grandiose schemes may amount to a single million and to a hundred million. So what?

I wish that I had been born thirty years later. I would then be part of the modern world by right of my earliest training. When I was a boy, I had sixteen hours of Latin and Greek each week but I learned very little about physics.

Whatever I know about that subject I had to acquire much later when my brain, already chockfull with useless information, did not take very kindly to new ideas.

RIGHT AND WRONG

But somewhere or other it seems to me that I have read that when sound passes beyond a certain and quite enormous amount of vibrations, it is no longer audible. And the same seems to hold true of everyday events that affect the human conceptions of right and wrong.

We can feel a deep and sincere indignation when we read of some maniac who slaughters five or six people. We feel a shudder of horror when we are told of the massacre of the Russian imperial family, a man and a woman and four children slaughtered in a dark cellar and in cold blood.

But when the wholesale execution of the French Revolution (drowning people by the boatload and guillotining them by the cartload) are thrown on the screen, they merely become an interesting historical event.

To a certain extent such an attitude is a good thing. Imagine that mankind were to remember all the follies and misdeeds of the past!

But there is a vast difference between anger and indignation. Anger acts as a poison to the system. But a healthy indignation is a marvelous social tonic.

And a hundred years from now, when the world shall have forgotten all about the NRAs and the New Deals, it will remember one thing, and the days through which we now pass will be known by a new and proud name—"THE ERA OF THE GREAT INDIGNATION."

Human Side of the News:

Story of Marie of Rumania

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

They call her "the mother-in-law of the Balkans," this lady who, at 39, retaining much of the beauty and charm, the regal carriage, the blue eyes and the ripe form here which at 17 caught the eye of Ferdinand when he was Crown Prince of Rumania and she was Princess Marie of Edinburgh.

She herself reigned as a queen for more than 30 years and she married two of her daughters to kings. Her son, Carol, is king of Rumania and her 11-year-old grandson, Peter, is king of Jugoslavia.

Gifted with brains as well as looks, Marie of Rumania has been a power in the politics of Europe since the turn of the century. And yet the other day she took up her knitting—a pair of socks for the boy king—to say to a caller:

BORN TO PURPLE

"No kind of sorrow is new to me, no sad experience is unknown to me, because life for a queen can be just as hard as it is for anyone else."

She was born to the purple in Kent, England, on October 29, 1875. Her father was the second son of Queen Victoria, and her mother the only daughter of Czar Alexander II of Russia.

As a young girl she had strong leanings toward the land of her mother. She was ambitious, too, and when her father appeared on the Rumanian throne cause along, she accepted him.

There was opposition. He was a Roman Catholic and this meant invoking for the first time of an old English law against persons of that faith succeeding to the British throne. Thus Marie gave up the distant chance of Windsor for the immediate certainty of the palace at Bucharest.

Through the Balkan wars and the World War she did her duty with all her might, her country needed her, looked up to her and believed in her.

She made a memorable visit to America in 1926 covering ten thousand miles from coast to coast, and although the journey was marred by some misunderstanding and quarrels among the entourage, she revealed herself as a loyal and democratic personage and a brilliant conversationalist. She went home by the north of the king and the escapades of her son, Carol.

ALWAYS IN FEAR

Eleanor Mercein Kelly, the brilliant American writer, tells of seeing Queen Marie last summer walking about the public gardens of Bucharest, "going about everywhere, just as she always has. If she is uneasy about life, she doesn't show it."

Mrs. Kelly tells a different story about Marie's daughter, also named Marie, but called by her mother Mignon. This young woman is the widow of the late Alexander of Yugoslavia.

Before the assassination at Marseille, Queen Mignon told Mrs. Kelly how she went around in continual apprehension for the safety of her husband and her children. The blow she anticipated has been struck.

The redoubtable mother was there to support her in the crisis. It was Marie who went to London to get the boy king and be him with the mother of his degrade.

An ambitious woman, a calculating one, Marie has had to be, but she is ever ready to go through hell and high water for her own. Indeed the task now of preserving a dynasty and she works at it while at her knitting, repeating to herself, no doubt, the words of her autobiography:

"Like the clown, I have laughed when my heart was heavy. I have always kept a smiling, amiable, interested face, never matter what inner burden mine may be."
